BODY FOUND IN WOODS, 2 BULLET HOLES IN HEAD

FITCHBURG, July 28.—The dead body of Miss Ruth Bickford, a pretty eighteen-year-old girl, was to-day found by a searching party in a clump of bushes not far from the home of Arthur Skillings in the centre of Ashburnham. Two bullet holes were in the girl's head. Not a great distance away, in another clump of bushes, a revolver was found.

TWO BULLET WOUNDS IN GIRL'S HEAD.

The Medical Examiner, Dr. Frederick H. Thompson of this city, hurried to Ashburnham, fifteen miles distant, to conduct an autopsy and to try to solve the mystery as to how the girl met her fate.

The fact that there were two bullet holes in her head controverts, it is thought, the possibility of suicide. Besides it is known that the girl, who was one of the prettiest and most popular in the town of Ashburnham, had no cause for taking her life.

She lived with her mother in the family of Arthur Skillings. Yesterday her mother and Mrs. Skillings, and Mrs. Skillings's daughter, went away on a visit. Ruth left home without saying a word to anyone.

Last night, after 6 o'clock when she failed to return, Mr. Skillings, who had expected her to prepare his evening meal, became uneasy. He hunted far and near for the girl, then aroused the neighborhood.

Twenty or thirty men and boys hunted the country over all last night, but it was not until late this morning that her body was found in the bushes.

Report That She Left a Note.

At Ashburnham excitement runs high. There was no known reason why the girl should attempt her own life, and that she should have any enemy there no one can imagine.

The whole affair is wrapped in mystery. The police and detectives are beginning to work on the case in an endeavor to find out why the girl should have been murdered.

It is said she left a note in the Skillings house before leaving home, and the authorities are seeking this, hoping that it may give some clue to a solution of the mystery.

PLEAS FAIL: RIVET MUST DIE IN CHAIR

Acting Governor Frothingham to-day refused to interfere in the death sentence of Napoleon Rivet for the murder of Joseph J. Gailloux after he had been shown a postal card purporting to be the confession of the real murderer. The postal card was presented to the acting executive by William H. Bent, senior counsel for Rivet.

The card was signed with the initials "J. T. G." Mr. Bent says that these initials correspond with the real names of one of the witnesses at the trial, not the name as it appears on the records, but the witness's real name. He refused to give the name of the witness or to say whether it was a government or a defence witness.

The Mysterious Post Card.

The postal card was addressed to the postmaster at Lowell. It was written in pencil, in a scrawly hand, and read as follows:

> Telephone to Mr. Bent Rivet is Inocent. I killed Gailloux. I was hired to. I dropped the Beer and threw acid on him. In 48 hours I will be at the Bottom of the Ocean. I was in the saloon with Rivet and Gailloux.
>
> J. T. G.

When Mr. Bent left the Governor's office after about five minutes' conversation he said that he did not believe that the acting Governor would interfere. "I have done my duty in presenting the card as new evidence," said Mr. Bent. "I left the card with a statement of the facts."

Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham later conferred with Bent and announced that he would not interfere.

Will Die at Midnight.

The execution of Rivert will take place, it is said, shortly after midnight to-night. The same rabid throng of inquisitive sightseers gathered about the prison gates last night. Attracted to the scene with the expectations of hearing that the condemned man had been put to death, they waited for a number of hours. Many women were among the number.

Rivet, knowing that the time limit will soon expire, has pleaded for as much time as possible, so that he might continue his religious devotions. Yesterday was the first day that he had not spent some part of the day in reading magazines and newspapers. Every moment of the day that was not used in eating his meals, was devoted to the reading of his bible.

Fr. Malley, the Catholic chaplain of the prison, has put in a great deal of time with the doomed man. The priest, fearing a breakdown under the terrific strain that the condemned man is undergoing, has been with him day and night. Not a moment has the great hearted priest given to his other duties that he could give to the man whose hours on earth are numbered.

The condemned man has not lost his nerve and he is without question the most wonderful prisoner ever placed in a death cell in the State Prison at Charlestown. During the entire time that he has spent in the death cell it has been his habit to chat with the death watch, but yesterday and this morning he has had but little to say to them. He is not grieving, but is devoting his entire time preparing himself for the end.

SUICIDE THEORY IS URGED IN RAWN CASE

CHICAGO, July 28.—Charges that witnesses in the Ira G. Rawn inquest have left Cook county to avoid testifying to facts that would tend to prove the theory of suicide, were made to-day by Samuel H. Greeley, president of the Winnetka Village Board. He declared that no verdict but suicide will be possible when the inquest is finished at the Winnetka Town Hall.

DONOVAN IS HELD ON AUTO CHARGE

John Donovan, aged twenty-two, of No. 86 Henley street, Charlestown, appeared before Judge Murray in the Municipal Court to-day charged with stealing an automobile valued at $3,000, the property of Mrs. Adelaide White of No. 535 Beacon street, on July 13. Donovan was held for the Grand Jury in $2,000.

CHARGE COTTON RATES ARE TOO HIGH

WASHINGTON, July 28.—A complaint was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission to-day by the A. P. Brantley Company of Savannah, Ga., against the New England Navigation Company, the Ocean Steamship Company and the Atlantic Coast Line Railway, charging that the ocean rates on Sea Island cotton from Georgia to New England points are too high.

CITY OF BOSTON HAS GOOD CREDIT RATING

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The rates of interest cities are paying on their outstanding debt obligations are steadily rising, it is pointed out in the census bureau's annual report for 1908, issued to-day. The cities of over 300,000 population with the best credit rating were: Detroit, 3.37 per cent.; Boston, 3.64 per cent.; and Philadelphia, 3.79 per cent.

ENORMOUS DIVIDEND BY THE CHALMERS CO.

DETROIT, Mich., July 28.—The Chalmers Motor Company has declared a cash dividend of 30 per cent. and a stock dividend of 1,000 per cent, the capital stock increase involved being from $300,000 to $3,000,000.

Owing to a cancellation the strong Savin Hill A. A. would like to arrange a game with some strong team for Saturday, July 30th, at home. C. Armstrong, manager, 1,152 Dorchester avenue, Dorchester, Mass. Tel. Main 2214.

CASHIER ARRESTED AS SLAYER

NEW YORK, July 28.—H. A. Morgan, cashier of the American Sugar Refining Company, was arrested at noon on a charge of having fired the shots which killed one man in the Williamsburg riot to-day.

Five thousand men and women rioters to-day fought a pitched battle with police, strike-breakers and special guards about the Williamsburg plant of the American Sugar Refining Company. At least one man was killed and twenty-five seriously hurt.

Police Fire Into Crowd.

The police fired point blank into the crowd as, led by screaming women, it attacked a band of non-union men being taken into the factory under guard.

The police opened fire after the mob had showered brickbats from the roofs of the houses lining the route followed by the strike-breakers who were taken across the East River from Manhattan. An attempt to send out non-union drivers from the refinery aggravated the trouble.

When the situation was ominous the crack of a pistol in the hands of a rioter started the most serious trouble. Within a few moments the battle was on, the police shooting to kill. Back and forth through the streets about the big plant the struggle waged, men on each side falling every minute.

"Rush More Reserves."

"Send more reserves" was the call flashed to police headquarters again and again and within a short time the entire Williamsburg district of Brooklyn and contiguous sections had been drained of all available police.

James Sherlock, who was cornered by six men, was so badly slashed and stabbed that at the Eastern District Hospital his death was predicted. The battle was the climax of a month's desultory disorder.

For four weeks there had been a strike at the Sugar Trust's plant. Early to-day word spread through the surrounding tenement districts that an attempt would be made to run the plant on a normal basis with strike-breakers. The arrival of forty men from Manhattan, under guard, inflamed the crowd which had begun to gather early.

The forty paraded somewhat ostentatiously, their guards—a heavy force of specials—waving long clubs belligerently. The party was attacked.

Priest Stops Riot.

Father William B. Farrell of SS. Peter and Paul's Roman Catholic Church, did more to stop the riot than any one else. "My good people, go home," he shouted. "I beg of you to stop. One of your number is dead and a number are injured. Go home and be peaceful. Cease interferring with these people."

Dozens of rioters took off their hats. Women knelt in the streets and began praying. The priest's words had won out. The rioting suddenly came to an end. But half an hour later it was renewed when the police tried to drive the crowds out of Kent avenue and the heroic priest was struck on the head by a brick and stunned. Several of the rioters carried him into a doorway. When he had regained his senses he ran back to the scene of trouble and again addressed the rioters.

3 NAVAL PRISONERS INJURED BY DYNAMITE

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 28.—Three naval prisoners employed on an excavation, were injured by a premature explosion of dynamite at the navy yard to-day. One of them is in the naval hospital. The other two are not seriously injured. The navy yard officials refused to make the names of the men public. Excavation was being made for the foundation of a $250,000 foundry.

LITTLE GIRL KILLED BY DOUBLEDAY AUTO

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 28.—Knocked down by a fast speeding automobile, whose owner was on the way to keep an appointment with Colonel Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill, little Anna Hempstead, three and one-half years old, was killed instantly, just before noon to-day. The car, one of the large touring kind, was occupied by F. M. Doubleday of the publishing firm of Doubleday, Page & Co., and his chauffeur.

SEEKS DIVORCE AFTER 50 YEARS

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 28.—Charles M. Tuttle, after having been separated from his wife, for fifty years, has brought suit for divorce.

He alleges they were married in 1851, and she never forgave him for enlisting ten years later.

GREAT CROWD SEES POLICE ON DIAMOND

Fully 1,000 persons saw the baseball nine of the Boston Police department defeat the team representing the Cambridge police at the Randolph street playgrounds, South End, to-day. The Boston policemen won by a score of 13 to 2. The game was interesting from start to finish and lasted six innings.

"Big George" Mahoney, who is attached to the Dudley Street Station, famous as a former National League player, was there with the wallop when it came to sending the leather sphere up among the clouds and pulling down flies from the enemy. He lost none of his old time vigor.

"Joe" O'Neil of the Joy street station proved an adept as a twirler for the Boston team. He held the visitors down to two runs and was ably supported by Alexander, Foley, Mahoney, Loughlin, Mullen, Battis and Howard.

The Cambridge police were handicapped by not having their regular pitcher, but they put up a rattling good game. Patrolman Kerns of the team showed considerable speed on the hill. He was splendidly supported by Patrolman Neilen, Henry, Dwyer, Ackerly, Sheehan, Galagher, Curtin and Hogan.

Features of the game were the remarkable catches of Patrolman Donovan and "Matt" Mullen, who pulled down some high flies in the out field, and a running catch made by Curtin of the Cambridge team, who caught a high fly from the bat of Patrolman Donovan. Donovan knocked a home run and brought in two men for the Boston police in the third inning. The score:

Boston Police	4	3	4	0	0	2—13
Cambridge Police.	1	0	0	0	0	1—2

FINED $25 FOR CRUELTY TO TURTLE

Is a turtle being treated cruelly if left on its back for twenty-four hours? Is that the natural position for a turtle? Judge Sullivan, in Municipal Court, settled that question to-day, when he fined Jim H. Weiner, a restaurant keeper, at No. 135 Federal street, $25 for cruelty to the turtle. Harvey R. Fuller, agent for the S. P. C. A., made the complaint. Weiner apealed and was held in $200.

EARL GREY BEGINS TOUR.

OTTAWA, July 28.—Earl Grey has begun his five thousand mile circle of the Canadian interland through the district of Keewatin, through Hudson Bay and round by the Labrador coast and Newfoundland back to Montreal.

EIGHT RUSSIANS HELD.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 28.—Eight prominent officials, including Colonel Akimoff, have been lodged in the Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul. They were arrested on serious charges of corruption.

NOBLEMAN AND WIFE RUSH HERE IN ENGINE'S CAB

MANCHESTER-BY-THE-SEA, July 28.—Marchese Paolo di Montagliari, consular charge d'affaires of the Italian embassy, allows no railroad schedules to stand in the way when there is an appointment to be kept.

He proved that when he hired a special engine and, with his wife, rode in the cab with the engineer and fireman to meet in Boston the express from New York, which was bringing a guest to the Summer legation here.

With but eight minutes before the New York train was due in the South station, Boston, the acting ambassador and his wife, grimy with soot and cinders, were helped from the cab in the North station. They rushed to the carriage entrance, jumped into a taxi-cab and were whirled across the city just in time to greet Donna Anna Maria Strozzi of Florence, Italy, a friend of the Italian Queen, as she stepped from the New York express.

Because of the many social functions he almost forgot that he was to meet his guest. With his wife he was playing tennis at the Essex County Club. The lawns and verandas were crowded when the pair raced to the clubhouse. Unheeding of speed limit, their car was taxed to the utmost to the Manchester station, where it arrived just in time for the marchese to see the last car of the Boston express swing out of sight. He immediately sought the station agent. There was nothing to be done in the way of getting a special, and he was about to give up when an engine whistle was heard.

"What is that?" asked the marchese.

"The engine which has just taken the millionaire's express to Magnolia," was the reply.

"I'll take it, said the acting ambassador.

The engine was flagged and, lifting his wife aboard, the marchese followed into the cab and rode the twenty-five miles to Boston as fast as the schedule would allow.

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS BROKEN OFF

MADRID, July 28.—Diplomatic relations between Spain and the Vatican were broken off to-day.

RESULT OF LONG RELIGIOUS CONFLICT.

To-day's break is the outcome of the bitter struggle that has been waged in the last several weeks between Premier Canalejas and the clerical forces. King Alfonso supported the Premier. The crux of the matter lies in the desire of the government to give other churches the same freedom of worship that the Catholic Church enjoys.

The situation is all the more remarkable because of the fact that the Vatican's diplomatic affairs are in the hands of a Spaniard, Cardinal Merry del Val.

No new agreement or legislation was demanded, the government simply announcing a new construction of the clause in the concordat by which the rights of the Catholics to the sole use of religious insignia is now restricted to processions in the streets.

The present remarkable situation between Rome and the country that has for centuries been regarded as the most stalwart stronghold of the church is indirectly due to the civil warfare of a year ago, including the Ferrer case. Previous ministries failed because they did not satisfy the public radical demand for a stand against the clericals. This Canalejas, a radical, has taken, with the aid of Alfonso.

Premier is Denounced.

Religious processions are being held, and special prayers for the restoration of the entente have been ordered for all churches. Crowds began to gather at several points in Madrid as the news spread. Canalejas was denounced by speakers.

The radical papers this afternoon comment exultantly, condemning Cardinal del Val, and referring to the several recent disputes in which the Vatican has been involved, including the Roosevelt incident, and the Pope's recent encyclical which aroused a storm of protest in Germany, as well as the dispute with Portugal.

KAISER REJECTS MADRIZ' APPEAL

BERLIN, July 28.—The Monroe doctrine has won another important victory. The appeal of President Madriz of Nicaragua for aid against the interference of the United States has been turned down by Germany, it was announced to-day.

Through Herr de Buch, German Minister to Central America, the Kaiser has replied to Madriz that he can do nothing in the matter which was laid before the Powers in a general appeal cabled on June 16.

HARRIMAN DEAL MADE AT LAST

NEW YORK, July 28.—According to a story published by a financial news bureau here to-day, the dream of E. H. Harriman's life, unfilled at the time of his death, has been made into reality by the purchase by Harriman interests of the remaining transcontinental railroad, the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific.

The banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., in conjunction with an English syndicate headed by Sir Ernest Cassel, purchased at private sale 250,000 shares of Rock Island common and such holdings of Missouri Pacific and Wabash as had been held by the Pearson syndicate, another group of English capitalists operating here. The Harriman interests now control the transcontinental routes from Puget Sound to a Panama.

The northern territory of the United States is now served by the Union Pacific, the central territory by the Union and Central Pacific roads and the southern territory by the Rock Island and Southern Pacific road systems, 23,000 miles of railroad with a capital of $722,408,400.

EUGENE V. DEBS OPERATED ON

ROCHESTER, Minn., July 28.—Eugene V. Debs, the Socialist leader, was operated on for an obstruction of the intestines at St. Mary's Hospital here. The operation was performed by Dr. William J. Mayo, president of the American Medical Association. The operation was entirely successful, and Debs's condition is said not to be alarming.

Little can be told of his condition definitely before twenty-four hours, however, according to the hospital surgeons. He came to Rochester several days ago, suffering from abdominal trouble. He recovered from the anaesthetic satisfactorily.

MARSHALL HAS MORE TIME TO FILE DEMURRER

John R. Marshall was not brought into the Federal Court to-day from the Charles Street Jail on the indictment charging him with conspiring with Martin J. Walsh and William J. (Big Bill) Kelliher in aiding and abetting George W. Coleman to misapply funds of the National City Bank of Cambridge, amounting to something over $300,000.

Marshall was not brought in for the reason that his attorney, Edward L. McManus, had been granted another week by Judge Dodge for the filing of a demurrer to this Federal indictment against his client.

Attorney McManus to-day declared most emphatically that he is going to make a hard fight in behalf of Marshall, who, he insists, is innocent of the charge placed against him.

Mrs. John R. Marshall, formerly Mrs. Nellie Penn, was in the Federal Building with Attorney McManus. While there she secured a pass permitting her to visit her husband in his cell. As soon as she got the pass she hurried over to the jail.

The matter of the bail was called to the attention of Attorney McManus. He intimated the prospects of raising the $10,000 security demanded by the government were very poor. He intimated that he believed that Marshall would have to remain in jail, although a determined effort is being made by Mrs. Marshall to find some persons satisfactory to the court as competent to go her husband's bail.

DENIAL BY NOEL FIRM

F. D. Land, eastern manager of the Noel Construction Company, replying to a statement made on July 21 last in regard to delay in the construction of the naval hospital in Portsmouth, N. H., declares to-day that the labor trouble mentioned was not due to tardiness on the part of his corporation in paying sub-contractors.

"The statements made in reference to the Noel Construction Company not paying their sub-contractors was entirely false," he says. "The facts in the case are that both of these sub-contractors have already been already overpaid by the Noel Company and on account of their not meeting their obligations with their employes, they have been dismissed from the work and their contracts annulled. The Noel Construction Company is now completing its contracts."

LIGHTNING CUTS UP DIDOES IN BROCKTON

BROCKTON, July 28.—A lightning bolt struck the store of Samuel Bolles, No. 111 Forest avenue, at 4:50 a. m. After crashing through the woodwork it followed the telephone wire into the Bolles residence adjoining. Edward Bolles, son of Samuel, was dressing himself in one of the rooms. The lightning crashed through the walls, ignited a mattress and gave Edward a severe shock. His watch in his vest on a chair is missing and the chain was melted. Lightning struck the barn of Thomas F. Bowe, No. 74 Clinton avenue setting it afire. The damage was $500. A bungalow owned by Miss Margaret Martin, adjoining was struck and the damage was $600.

NEW YORK, July 28.—"Reggie" Ronalds, former Rough Rider with Colonel Roosevelt, well-known clubman and father of the "Frapped Baby," has sailed on the Adriatic, secreted and guarded by his valet.

It was announced by intimate friends to-day that a suit for separation had been started by Mrs. Thora Strong Ronalds, who inherited the vast fortune of the late William L. Scott of Erie, Pa. She was the daughter of Charles H. Strong, the president of the Erie & Pittsburg Railroad, and also a millionaire.

Parted Some Months Ago.

Inquiry to-day revealed that the couple, who were married in February, 1906, had been living in separate establishments for several months. First Mr. Ronalds left the fine home at No. 876 Fifth avenue, which had been leased from the Blossom estate, and was at home to his cronies of bachelor days at the Brook Club. For a time Mrs. Ronalds held to the Fifth avenue mansion. But about May she, too, gave up and moved to the Plaza with the "Frapped Baby," now nearly two years old. She gave up her Plaza Hotel rooms two weeks ago. She had just received a visit from her mother, and they closed the apartments and returned together to the parental roof in Erie.

Friends wondered to-day if Mr. Ronalds had decided to run across to London and consult his mother. As Mrs. Mary Frances Ronalds she has lived much of the time in the English capital. And she is known as the "friend of kings, queens and royalty." It was she who arranged for the presentation of her attractive daughter-in-law at the Court of St. James late in 1906, when Ronalds and his bride were enjoying their honeymoon abroad.

Heiress to Great Wealth.

Just what effect the news of the separation will have upon Mrs. Ronalds is awaited with interest by society. While Reginald Ronalds has lived for years as a man of independent means, his wife was recognized as the heiress to great wealth.

The Ronalds baby is well known to society. When it first peeped into this world it became known as the "Frapped Baby" because of the strenuous cold storage methods that were used to bring it safely through the first infantile attack of illness. Later it became known throughout the country because of the famous christening at Erie in August, 1908.

MOTHER ABANDONS BABE FOR CHORUS

NEW YORK, July 28.—Lottie Westland, twenty-one, wife of Charles Westland of No. 77 Georgia avenue, East New York, met Matilda Lautenburger at a dance last Winter. Matilda was seventeen, but she had seen a lot of the big, gay world. She had held a job as "chorus lady" in a New York show three weeks last season.

Mrs. Westland was entranced with Matilde. She got her husband to consent to have Matilda come and live with them. The third birthday of the Westland baby brought the father home expecting to find a party in progress. Instead he found the baby crying and a note on the bedroom pin cushion reading:

"Mattie and me have gone away. We would rather carry a spear than a baby."

FERNALD ON VISIT TO THE NAVY YARD

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 28.—Governor Fernald of Maine, accompanied by Horace Mitchell and Captain Frank A. Wilner, inspected the naval station and the batleship New Hampshire to-day. He received a salute of seventeen guns from the yard battery and the ships. This is his first visit to the local yard.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Noted Swedish Explorer Now Accused of Faking.

STOCKHOLM—Scandinavia to-day is in the midst of a hotly waged battle as the result of charges made against Dr. Sven Hedin, the noted explorer, accusing him of being a fakir. His accuser is August Strindberg, dramatist and writer, who declares that Hedin has taken all his claims from old documents relating to the work of the Swedish explorer Ronart, dating back to 1720. Hedin denounces Strindberg. Hedin, whose principal work has been done in Thibet, reported after his last expedition the discovery of a new range of mountains back of the Himalayas.

Peruvian Liner Burned.

LIMA, Peru—Saved by wireless, fifty passengers and most of the crew of the new liner Huallaga are being brought to port on the Ucayaka. The Huallaga was burned to the water's edge off the Peruvian coast, and three of her crew were killed in fighting fire and attempting to quell the panic which followed close on the discovery of the blaze. It is reported that 200 bags of mail from New York were destroyed. The Huallaga, an oil burner of the Peruvian line, was bound from Panama.

Ryan on Copper Situation.

LONDON—John D. Ryan, in an interview regarding the copper situation, says: "The representatives of many of the leading copper interests have been conferring in London, with the result, I think, that there is a better understanding between them regarding the copper situation. In fact, I may say there is a very general understanding among copper producers regarding the future output of copper."

Hetty Davenport London Bride.

LONDON—Ambassador Reid was among the American guests at the wedding of Hetty Davenport, daughter of the late J. Albert Davenport of New York, and Frederick William Menzies of the Second Life Guards. The ceremony in St. George's Church, Hanover square, was witnessed by many fashionable members of the American colony.

BOY PREVENTS MOTHER'S SUICIDE

Mrs. Mary Doherty of No. 8 Sherwood street, Roxbury, attempted to commit suicide by drinking iodine, but is reported to be resting comfortably at the City Hospital to-day. Her chances of recovery are good. That she is alive is due to the fact that her son, George, eleven, took the precaution to dilute the iodine slightly with water, having feared that his mother would try to end her life. The woman is said to have become heart-broken over her inability to provide for her children.

SAILOR IS LOST OFF BOSTON VESSEL

News has been received by letter from Captain Clark, master of the Boston schooner Star of the Sea, reporting the loss of David Kear, one of the seamen, who either jumped or fell overboard when the vessel was off Thatcher's Island, bound from Boston to Clark's Cove, Me., to load ice for Baltimore or Washington. Kear belonged in Medford.

CRIPPEN SURELY ON MONTROSE, SAY MESSAGES

MONTREAL, July 28.—Dr. H. H. Crippen, who fled from London when the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, was discovered, is positively known to be upon the steamer Montrose, according to cables received to-day from Scotland Yard.

All doubt of a possible mistake in the identity of the supposed Rev. Mr. Robinson and his son on the Montrose was swept away when Chief McCaskill of the provincial detectives received a message from London declaring the pair to be Crippen and his stenographer, Ethel Clare Leneve.

From this local authorities drew the deduction that new information had been received by Scotland Yard. The Laurentia, on which Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard is racing to Canada to arrest the fugitives, was to-day said to be off Belle Isle, where the Montrose is not due till to-morrow.

Wireless is Kept Busy.

This estimate of the liner's position was made on careful calculations worked out by the Pacific and White Star line officials, collaborating with the police. "We will be in touch with Inspector Dew within a few hours," said Chief McCaskill today. "The wireless is being kept busy."

The final plans for the extradition of the couple are now complete. There will be formalities to be gone through, but no involved extradition proceedings are necessary under the law of the empire. If necessary Dew could start back with the captives an hour after they landed.

So confident are the authorities that the trap arranged will not be sprung until the Montrose is well within the borders of Canada.

Arrest Probable in Quebec.

Rimouski, headquarters of Chief Constable Charles Gauvreau, to whom the arrest has been delegated by a warrant issued under the fugitive offenders act, is five miles southeast of Father Point, where the Montrose picks up a pilot and where the government tender Eureka is at the disposal of the police. The St. Lawrence there is thirty miles wide. Rimouski lies 175 miles northeast of Quebec, and it is expected that the real climax in the case will not be reached till the Montrose reaches Quebec.

The police to-day prepared instructions for Captain James Kendall of the Montrose, cautioning him to preclude the possibility of the suspect's suicide. The dispatch of these orders has been left to the wireless.

ESTRADA NOW HOLDS EASTERN NICARAGUA

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Consul Moffatt at Bluefields reported to the State Department to-day that the Estrada faction is now in control of all points on the eastern coast of Nicaragua, with the exception of San Juan del Norte, Bluefields Bluff and Cape Gracias.

AMERICAN BANKERS STOP STOCK SLUMP

NEW YORK, July 28.—A diagnosis of the recent troubles in the stock market was furnished yesterday at the same time that the cure was announced and the slump which had reached panic prices on Tuesday was given a sudden upturn, running to five points or more.

The upturn came when it became known that an International syndicate by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had stepped in and stopped the liquidation of an overextended group of Canadian and English speculators with continental connections by taking over at private sale a block of the securities of various railroads constituting the nucleus of what was intended, under happier skies, to be a new transcontinental railway group.

Members of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. refused absolutely to affirm or deny their part in taking off the market the weight thrown upon it as the result of the entrance of the overambitious foreigner into the American railway field, but confirmation in other quarters of the news that the market had been relieved of the impending burden of liquidation in the shares of the roads in question made the street accept the silence of international banking house as technical evidence.

During the declines in Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande, Wabash and Lehigh Valley in recent markets the street had been willing to accept surface indications as pointing to a market defeat of American interests long identified with these systems. Wall street forgot, for the moment, the half-guessed ambitions of the English and Canadian syndicate, headed by Dr. E. S. Pearson, the developer and promoter of some $150,000,000 of Latin-American electrical enterprises, to take a large part in the railroad field in this country, and when the story gained currency that it was this group its position weakened by the heavy declines in the market value of securities purchased early in the year in furtherance of its plans, that had been the sick member of the financial bond market, sentiment responded instantly to the changed state of affairs.

It was estimated in authoritative quarters at the time that something like one-fifth of the Rock Island's $140,000,000 capitalization had passed into these hands.

ASK COURT TO MODIFY HEINZE INJUNCTION

The failure of F. Augustus Heinze, the New York copper magnate, to appear last Tuesday before F. Rockwood Hall, master in the suits of Heinze and others against A. D. F. Adams and others, as ordered by the Supreme Court, led the defendants, who are prominent Boston bankers and stock brokers, to appear to-day before Judge Braley in the Supreme Court and ask for a modification of the injunction so that they might dispose of $600,000 worth of stocks and bonds. Judge Braley said that if Mr. Heinze did not appear in Boston to testify before the master on September 1 he would then seriously consider the question of modifying the injunction.

L. D. BRANDEIS PRESIDES OVER PEACE MEETING

NEW YORK, July 28.—Louis D. Brandeis, of Boston is presiding at the joint meeting of the committee of ten from each side which is holding a peace conference to-day which it is hoped will settle the cloakmakers' strike. The strike affects about 70,000 workers. The conference is being held in Room 5246 in the Metropolitan Life Building and the committee represent the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Association on one side and the strikers on the other.

Mr. Brandeis was induced to come here to preside by Meyer London and Julius Henry Cohen. Attorney London, who is legal adviser for the strikers, said: "I am glad that Mr. Brandeis is coming here to act as requested. We know him to be broad-minded and we know he will be fair to both sides."

The membership of the peace committees has not been made public, but it is understood that Abraham Rosenberg, president of the International Home Garment Workers, and Alexander Bloch, chairman of the strikers' settlement committee, will be among the representatives of the tailors.

The demands of the latter vary with the grade of work made in the different factories. It is expected that the peace conference will last several days.

HELD WITHOUT BAIL IN DEATH CASE

Michael Columbo, an Italian, of No. 549 High street, Dedham, was to-day held without bail for the grand jury, charged with the murder of Raphael Ferrari, in Dedham, Saturday night, July 16. The murder occurred during a quarrel in a Dedham pool room. Columbo struck Ferrari over the head with a billiard cue. Ferrari died from the effects of the blow.

MALDEN'S TAX RATE GOES UP

The tax rate for the current year, announced by the assessors of Malden, is $18.50, which is $2.80 in excess of last year's rate. This is the second largest rate in the history of the city and it was then $19.20 in 1908.

MORE BRIBERY CHARGES MADE IN ILLINOIS

CHICAGO, July 28.—That an attempt was made to buy seventeen Democratic votes for Albert J. Hopkins for United States Senator early in the session of the last General Assembly in January, 1909, is the charge made by the Chicago Tribune to-day. The alleged attempt at bribery followed the first futile attempt to elect a United States Senator. Hopkins was the occupant of the office at that time.

The new accusations are as startling as those made so recently that William Lorimer, who was elected to the office gained the honor through the bribery of State Assemblymen. Trials in this case are now pending. The Tribune says, in part:

"Thirty-five thousand dollars was the fund supposedly available for the purchase; $2,000 a head was the price agreed on; the sales agents for the Democrats were two members of hardly more than minor importance on the minority side; the block of necessary votes had been selected and was ready for delivery. It is asserted that Mr. Hopkins did not know his friends or their plans.

Plan Defended by Three

"The men who more than all others made the purchase impossible were Roger C. Sullivan, Democratic national committeeman for Illinois; Speaker Edward D. Shurtleff and William Lorimer.

The purchase of Democrats for Hopkins was stopped because Speaker Shurtleff, learning of the plan to deliver, threatened a complete exposure of the deal from the Speaker's chair, and because Mr. Sullivan, gathering the Democrats for a lecture in the St. Nicholas Hotel, told them he would put an end politically to any Democrat who dared to vote for the Republican junior Senator.

"The scheme was disclosed to the anti-Hopkins Republican organization and to the Democratic leaders, it is said, by the alcoholic babblings of a Democrat whose vote had been negotiated and who in his cups was rejoicing that some "easy money" was in sight. Word was carried to Shurtleff and Lorimer, who had been successful in preventing the election of Hopkins in the separate balloting of January 19, and in the first joint session of January 20. It also was telephoned to Mr. Sullivan in Chicago.

"Shurtleff sent for the two Democrats who were reported to him as being the manipulators of the delivery, and Sullivan took the 6:30 Chicago & Alton train for Springfield.

Speaker Threatens Exposure.

"The day, as nearly as it can be fixed, was January 21, when seven ineffectual ballots had been taken and when by agreement further balloting had been postponed. Mr. Hopkins on the twentieth ballot of the series, the one which ended the day's attempts, had eighty-three votes, lacking twenty of the necessary majority. There were, however, absentee Republicans who could be assembled and who could be counted for Hopkins, and it was figured that from fifteen to seventeen Democrats would be enough to elect.

"Mr. Shurtleff being informed and having asked two of the Democrats to visit him, told them in his room in the St. Nicholas Hotel that their plans were known. He said it would not be pleasant, but nevertheless it would be necessary for him to stop the roll call at the precise moment when the first Democrat voted for Albert J. Hopkins.

"He would then proceed, he said, to tell why that particular Democrat voted for Mr. Hopkins and how much he was to receive for doing so.

"Mr. Sullivan jumped off the Alton train when it arrived in Springfield shortly before midnight and made his way to the St. Nicholas Hotel. There is no stenographic report of the exact language used by Mr. Sullivan when he reached the comparative secrecy of the room in which the Democrats were assembled, but in effect it was something like this: 'I will break every bone in the political body of each and every one of you men if you sell out for Hopkins. You can't deliver yourselves for him. I won't have it. You can't take any dirty money offered you to vote for him.'"

NEGROES OPPOSE MULATTO OFFICIAL

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Because he is a mulatto, some of the negroes of the District of Columbia are objecting to the appointment of Whitefield McKinlay as collector of the port of Georgetown, D. C., recently made by President Taft. One prominent member of his race, speaking for a part of his people, said that they do not believe the appointment of a mulatto would be of any benefit to the race. Some white man, he said, should receive the appointment. He said that it was not right when recognizing the negro race to give all the good positions to mulattoes.

ELECTRIFICATION PLANS PROGRESS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 28.—Another step in the electrification of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad from this city to Boston was announced when Vice President Bruckland stated that double tracks will be laid on the stretch of the road from the tunnel bridge to East Junction, in East Providence, between here and Boston, and will necessitate the building of new bridges, extension of old ones and elimination of some grade crossings.

LAURA JEAN LIBBEY TO ACT

NEW YORK, July 28.—Laura Jean Libbey, the author of "When His Love Grew Cold," "Lovers Once, but Strangers Now," and more than fifty other similar novels, will make her debut on the stage next Monday night, in a New York roof garden.

"In the years I have been writing," she explained, "I have received thousands of letters from girls throughout the country asking for personal talks. This opportunity gives me the ability to answer them."

O'MEARA PUNISHES POLICEMAN FARRELL

Found guilty by a trial board of conduct unbecoming an officer, in that he fixed up a complaint against himself before the matter had been decided upon at headquarters and while a preliminary investigation was being conducted, Patrolman John P. Farrell of the Court Square Station has been ordered by Police Commissioner O'Meara to serve seventy hours, punishment duty and submit to an oral and written examination as to his knowledge of the rules governing the conduct of officers.

Farrell was complained of by a citizen of using abusive and insulting language toward him. While the matter was being investigated by Captain Gaskin a letter was received by Commissioner O'Meara from the complainant, stating that the charge was withdrawn, as the patrolman had apologized for his action.

TUFTS COLLEGE GETS DR. CUSHMAN

PROVIDENCE, July 28.—The Rev. Dr. Henry I. Cushman, pastor emeritus of the First Universalist Church of this city, has accepted the chair of Homiletics and pastoral care in the Crane Theological School at Tufts College. Dr. Cushman has taken the position for one year, pending the appointment of a new dean to succeed the Rev. Dr. C. H. Lombard. He will enter upon his new duties on September 1.

CHILD DRAGGED BY TROLLEY CAR

QUINCY, July 28.—Margaret Donnelly, seven, tripped and fell upon the car tracks at Hough's Neck, and before the motorman of an approaching car could jam on the brakes the fender had struck the child and then for several yards she was dragged along the tracks, sustaining injuries that may prove fatal. Dr. John H. Ash took the child to the Quincy Hospital, where it was learned that she had a dislocated hip, a fracture of the upper leg and possible internal injuries.

LOOK OUT FOR US! WE'RE FULL O' GINGER

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Americans consume half a million pounds of preserved ginger every year, and practically all of it comes from China, according to Vice-Consul-General Fuller at Hongkong. Preserved ginger has an invoice unit value of 6½ cents a pound, and there is a specific duty of 1 cent a pound and an ad valorem tax of 35 per cent.

TAFT BACK, GETS BIG WELCOME FROM BEVERLY

BEVERLY, July 28.—President Taft returned to his Summer home to-day, after rounding out his ten days' vacation cruise on the yacht Mayflower along the Maine coast. A large crowd of enthusiastic spectators was on hand when the yacht was sighted to the northeast, proceeding hitherwards under full steam. A great cheer went up and the vessel anchored off Burgess Point and President Taft came ashore. The entire town had a gala day of it, many of the buildings being decorated with bunting and flags in honor of the occasion.

President Taft appeared to have benefited by the cruise. He seemed pleased with the hearty reception accorded him to-day by Beverly folk. As soon as he reached his home he set to work attending to matters which were not referred to him while he was off on vacation.

The President learned the news by wireless of the nomination of Warren G. Harding as the Republican candidate for Governor of Ohio. The President seemed delighted over the outcome, as he has a very high estimate of Mr. Harding.

Robert A. and Miss Helen Taft, who have been at Murray Bay, Que., will return here this week. Professor and Mrs. Louis T. More are soon expected and another visitor will probably be Mrs. Taft's sister, Mrs. Thomas K. Laughlin of Pittsburg, whose reported engagement to Captain A. W. Butt made a considerable stir in Washington until it was denied. Captain Butt will also be here during her visit.

SUFFRAGE BILL THROWN OUT

LONDON, July 28.—The doom of the woman suffrage bill was announced by the government to-day when David Lloyd George, chancellor of the exchequer, stated that the bill would not be allowed to come up in the Commons.

This declaration from Lloyd-George is the first definite statement from the Government since the bill was passed more than a week ago and promptly shelved. To-day's admission is the signal for a resumption of militant methods by the suffragettes, according to their leaders. Though it was understood at the time the bill was laid aside that it would not be called up again, at least not in the present session, the suffragettes have since been fighting to secure a pledge to the contrary. On the announcement of Lloyd George's statement the women leaders denounced him and gave warning of their intention to carry on the fight.

SPECULATORS CORNER RED SOX TICKETS

Speculators were busy to-day at the downtown hotels selling tickets in the grand stand at $2 each for this afternoon's Red Sox game. The speculators were on hand when the doors of Wright & Ditson's athletic store in Washington street opened and bought the three or four tickets each that any one could buy. Then they were recognized and could buy no more. The speculators ran up and down Washington street with hands full of greenbacks trying to get men and boys to go in and buy tickets for them. As soon as a speculator got hold of a few tickets he made for the Touraine, Lenox, Clark's, Brewster and other downtown hotels and later started for the grounds.

NEW PARTY FORMED IN PENNSYLVANIA

PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—Insurgency in both major political parties and the effects of the great industrial struggle of last Spring, in which a general strike was called in Philadelphia and a similar move threatened for the whole State, came to a head to-day with the organization of a third party to contest the State at the polls in November. More than 200 of the possible 274 delegates were on hand to-day when the Independent party was born at the convention in Witherspoon Hall.

SUNDAY SCHEDULE OF BAND CONCERTS

The schedule of the free concerts to be given by the City of Boston, under the auspices of the municipal music department, on Sunday next is as follows:

Pine Bank, Jamaica Plain, by Teel's Band; Marine Park, City Point, South Boston, by Bates' Band; Wood Island Park, East Boston, by Banda Rossa; Boston Common, Kaurich Band. All four concerts will begin at 3:30 P. M. and the selections on the programmes are all popular music.

C. J. KELLY FILES BANKRUPTCY PAPERS

Christopher J. Kelly of No. 1,038 Washington street, a wholesale shoe and leather dealer, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy with the United States District Court to-day, stating his liabilities are $37,624.24, and his assets $3,914. He owes the Federal Trust Company, his largest creditors, $4,200. Referee Olmstead appointed Joseph W. McConnell receiver in the case.

FUGITIVE BANK CASHIER LOCATED

NEW YORK, July 28.—Erwin Wilder, the fugitive cashier of the New York agency of the Russo-Chinese Bank, who has confessed to the theft of $680,000 worth of the institutions securities to make good his stock gambling operations, was located to-day by central office detectives at a house in White Plains. He is now under surveillance.

LOW BIRTH RATE IN OYSTER BAY

OYSTER BAY, July 28.—According to the government census enumerator, the population of Oyster Bay increases only 5 or 6 per cent. as against more than twice that percentage in nearby localities.

The enumerators don't say "race suicide" is poplar in Roosevelt's home, but don't understand the falling off in births there. The North Hempstead increase is 13 per cent. and that of Hempstead proper is 14.

JAMES F. STRATTON IS CRITICALLY ILL

MILFORD, July 28.—James F. Stratton, ex-member of the Democratic State Central Committee, ex-State Senator, past president of the Massachusetts Fraternal Order of Eagles, and past State President of the A. O. H., as well as one of the most widely known men in Massachusetts, is critically ill with malarial and kidney trouble in his apartments at Hotel Rockingham, Central street.

MARSHALL HAS MORE TIME TO FILE DEMURRER

John R. Marshall was not brought into the Federal Court to-day from the Charles Street Jail on the indictment charging him with conspiring with Martin J. Walsh and William J. (Big Bill) Kelliher in aiding and abetting George W. Coleman to misapply funds of the National City Bank of Cambridge, amounting to something over $300,000.

Marshall was not brought in for the reason that his attorney, Edward L. McManus, had been granted another week by Judge Dodge for the filing of a demurrer to this Federal indictment against his client.

Attorney McManus to-day declared most emphatically that he is going to make a hard fight in behalf of Marshall, who, he insists, is innocent of the charge placed against him.

Mrs. John R. Marshall, formerly Mrs. Nellie Penn, was in the Federal Building with Attorney McManus. While there she secured a pass permitting her to visit her husband in his cell. As soon as she got the pass she hurled over to the jail.

The matter of the bail was called to the attention of Attorney McManus. He intimated the prospects of raising the $10,000 security demanded by the government were very poor. He intimated that he believed that Marshall would have to remain in jail, although a determined effort is being made by Mrs. Marshall to find some persons satisfactory to the court as competent to go her husband's bail.

DENIAL BY NOEL FIRM

F. D. Land, eastern manager of the Noel Construction Company, replying to a statement made on July 21 last in regard to delay in the construction of the naval hospital in Portsmouth, N. H., declares to-day that the labor trouble mentioned was not due to tardiness on the part of his corporation in paying sub-contractors.

"The statements made in reference to the Noel Construction Company not paying their sub-contractors was entirely false," he says. "The facts in the case are that both of these sub-contractors have already been already overpaid by the Noel Company and on account of their not meeting their obligations with their employes, they have been dismissed from the work and their contracts annulled. The Noel Construction Company is now completing its contracts."

LIGHTNING CUTS UP DIDOES IN BROCKTON

BROCKTON, July 28.—A lightning bolt struck the store of Samuel Bolles, No. 111 Forest avenue, at 4:50 a. m. After crashing through the woodwork it followed the telephone wire into the Bolles residence adjoining. Edward Bolles, son of Samuel, was dressing himself in one of the rooms. The lightning crashed through the walls, ignited a mattress and gave Edward a severe shock. His watch in his vest on a chair is missing and the chain was melted. Lightning struck the barn of Thomas F. Bowe, No. 74 Clinton avenue, setting it afire. The damage was $500. A bungalow owned by Miss Margaret Martin, adjoining was struck and the damage was $600.

Mrs. Reginald Ronalds and Soldier Husband

FIND MISSING GIRL SLEEPING IN WOODS

Sleeping in the woods of West Roxbury and the Back Bay Fens for three weeks and enduring untold privations, Evelyn Madsen, a fifteen-year-old Roxbury girl who comes of very respectable people, and her sweetheart, George Salvadge, a twenty-one-year-old West Roxbury youth, are under arrest to-day. Salvadge will be arraigned in the West Roxbury court to-day, while the little girl will be arraigned August 4.

NEW YORK, July 28.—"Reggie" Ronalds, former Rough Rider with Colonel Roosevelt, well-known clubman and father of the "Frapped Baby," has sailed on the Adriatic, secreted and guarded by his valet.

It was announced by intimate friends to-day that a suit for separation had been started by Mrs. Thora Strong Ronalds, who inherited the vast fortune of the late William L. Scott of Erie, Pa. She was the daughter of Charles H. Strong, the president of the Erie & Pittsburg Railroad, and also a millionaire.

Parted Some Months Ago.

Inquiry to-day revealed that the couple, who were married in February, 1906, had been living in separate establishments for several months. First Mr. Ronalds left the fine home at No. 876 Fifth avenue, which had been leased from the Blossom estate, and was at home to his cronies of bachelor days at the Brook Club. For a time Mrs. Ronalds held to the Fifth avenue mansion. But about May she, too, gave up and moved to the Plaza with the "Frapped Baby," now nearly two years old. She gave up her Plaza Hotel rooms two weeks ago. She had just received a visit from her mother, and they closed the apartments and returned together to the parental roof in Erie.

Friends wondered to-day if Mr. Ronalds had decided to run across to London and consult his mother. As Mrs. Mary Frances Ronalds she has lived much of the time in the English capital. And she is known as the "friend of kings, queens and royalty." It was she who arranged for the presentation of her attractive daughter-in-law at the Court of St. James late in 1906, when Ronalds and his bride were enjoying their honeymoon abroad.

Heiress to Great Wealth.

Just what effect the news of the separation will have upon Mrs. Ronalds is awaited with interest by society. While Reginald Ronalds has lived for years as a man of independent means, his wife was recognized as the heiress to great wealth.

The Ronalds baby is well known to society. When it first peeped into this world it became known as the "Frapped Baby" because of the strenuous cold storage methods that were used to bring it safely through the first infantile attack of illness. Later it became known throughout the country because of the famous christening at Erie in August, 1908.

MOTHER ABANDONS BABE FOR CHORUS

NEW YORK, July 28.—Lottie Westland, twenty-one, wife of Charles Westland of No. 77 Georgia avenue, East New York, met Matilda Lautenburger at a dance last Winter. Matilda was seventeen, but she had seen a lot of the big, gay world. She had held a job as "chorus lady" in a New York show three weeks last season.

Mrs. Westland was entranced with Matilda. She got her husband to consent to have Matilda come and live with them. The third birthday of the Westland baby brought the father home expecting to find a party in progress. Instead he found the baby crying and a note on the bedroom pin cushion reading:

"Mattie and me have gone away. We would rather carry a spear than a baby."

FERNALD ON VISIT TO THE NAVY YARD

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 28.—Governor Fernald of Maine, accompanied by Horace Mitchell and Captain Frank A. Wilner, inspected the naval station and the battleship New Hampshire to-day. He received a salute of seventeen guns from the yard battery and the ships. This is his first visit to the local yard.

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Noted Swedish Explorer Now Accused of Faking.

STOCKHOLM—Scandinavia to-day is in the midst of a hotly waged battle as the result of charges made against Dr. Sven Hedin, the noted explorer, accusing him of being a fakir. His accuser is August Strindberg, dramatist and writer, who declares that Hedin has taken all his claims from old documents relating to the work of the Swedish explorer Ronart, dating back to 1720. Hedin denounces Strindberg. Hedin, whose principal work has been done in Thibet, reported after his last expedition the discovery of a new range of mountains back of the Himalayas.

Peruvian Liner Burned.

LIMA, Peru—Saved by wireless, fifty passengers and most of the crew of the new liner Hualiaga are being brought to port on the Ucayaka. The Hualiaga was burned to the water's edge off the Peruvian coast, and three of her crew were killed in fighting fire and attempting to quell the panic which followed close on the discovery of the blaze. It is reported that 200 bags of mail from New York were destroyed. The Hualiaga, an oil burner of the Peruvian line, was bound from Panama.

Ryan on Copper Situation.

LONDON—John D. Ryan, in an interview regarding the copper situation, says: "The representatives of many of the leading copper interests have been conferring in London, with the result, I think, that there is a better understanding between them regarding the copper situation. In fact, I may say there is a very general understanding among copper producers regarding the future output of copper."

Hetty Davenport London Bride.

LONDON—Ambassador Reid was among the American guests at the wedding of Hetty Davenport, daughter of the late J. Albert Davenport of New York, and Frederick William Menzies of the Second Life Guards. The ceremony in St. George's Church, Hanover square, was witnessed by many fashionable members of the American colony.

Notables Coming on Oceanic.

LONDON—Among the passengers on the White Star liner Oceanic for New York were Mrs. John Astor and her daughter Alice Muriel, Lord Athlumney, the Earl of Euston, Charles W. Davidson, Baron Oura, Japanese Minister of Commerce and Agriculture; Henry C. Taft, brother of the President, and George Tyler of Liebler & Co.

BOY PREVENTS MOTHER'S SUICIDE

Mrs. Mary Doherty of No. 6 Sherwood street, Roxbury, attempted to commit suicide by drinking iodine, but is reported to be resting comfortably at the City Hospital to-day. Her chances of recovery are good. That she is alive is due to the fact that her son, George, eleven, took the precaution to dilute the iodine slightly with water, having feared that his mother would try to end her life. The woman is said to have become heart-broken over her inability to provide for her children.

SAILOR IS LOST OFF BOSTON VESSEL

News has been received by letter from Captain Clark, master of the Boston schooner Star of the Sea, reporting the loss of David Kear, one of the seamen, who either jumped or fell overboard when the vessel was off Thatcher's Island, bound from Boston to Clark's Cove, Me., to load ice for Baltimore or Washington. Kear belonged in Medford.

CRIPPEN SURELY ON MONTROSE, SAY MESSAGES

MONTREAL, July 28.—Dr. H. H. Crippen, who fled from London when the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, was discovered, is positively known to be upon the steamer Montrose, according to cables received to-day from Scotland Yard.

All doubt of a possible mistake in the identity of the supposed Rev. Mr. Robinson and his son on the Montrose was swept away when Chief McCaskill of the provincial detectives received a message from London declaring the pair to be Crippen and his stenographer, Ethel Clare Leneve.

From this local authorities drew the deduction that new information had been received by Scotland Yard. The Laurentia, on which Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard is racing to Canada to arrest the fugitives, was to-day said to be off Belle Isle, where the Montrose is not due till to-morrow.

Wireless Is Kept Busy.

This estimate of the liner's position was made on careful calculations worked out by the Pacific and White Star line officials, collaborating with the police. "We will be in touch with Inspector Dew within a few hours," said Chief McCaskill to-day. "The wireless is being kept busy."

The final plans for the extradition of the couple are now complete. There will be formalities to be gone through, but no involved extradition proceedings are necessary under the law of the empire. If necessary Dew could start back with the captives an hour after they landed.

So confident are the authorities that the trap arranged will not be sprung until the Montrose is well within the borders of Canada.

Arrest Probable in Quebec.

Rimouski, headquarters of Chief Constable Charles Gauvreau, to whom the arrest has been delegated by a warrant issued under the fugitive offenders act, is five miles southeast of Father Point, where the Montrose picks up a pilot and where the government tender Eureka is at the disposal of the police. The St. Lawrence there is thirty miles wide. Rimouski lies 175 miles northeast of Quebec, and it is expected that the real climax in the case will not be reached till the Montrose reaches Quebec.

The police to-day prepared instructions for Captain James Kendall of the Montrose, cautioning him to preclude the possibility of the suspect's suicide. The dispatch of these orders has been left to the wireless.

ESTRADA NOW HOLDS EASTERN NICARAGUA

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Consul Moffatt at Bluefields reported to the State Department to-day that the Estrada faction is now in control of all points on the eastern coast of Nicaragua, with the exception of San Juan del Norte, Bluefields Bluff and Cape Gracias.

AMERICAN BANKERS STOP STOCK SLUMP

NEW YORK, July 28.—A diagnosis of the recent troubles in the stock market was furnished yesterday at the same time that the cure was announced and the slump which had reached panic prices on Tuesday was given a sudden upturn, running to five points or more.

The upturn came when it became known that an international syndicate by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had stepped in and stopped the liquidation of an overextended group of Canadian and English speculators with continental connections by taking over at private sale a block of the securities of various railroads constituting the nucleus of what was intended, under happier skies, to be a new transcontinental railway group.

Members of the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. refused absolutely to affirm or deny their part in taking off the market the weight thrown upon it as the result of the entrance of the overambitious foreigner into the American railway field, but confirmation in other quarters of the news that the market had been relieved of the impending burden of liquidation in the shares of the roads in question made the street accept the silence of international banking house as technical evidence.

During the declines in Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande, Wabash and Lehigh Valley in recent markets the street had been willing to accept surface indications as pointing to a market defeat of American interests long identified with these systems. Wall street forgot, for the moment, the half-guessed ambitions of the English and Canadian syndicate, headed by Dr. F. S. Pearson, the developer and promoter of some $150,000,000 of Latin-American electrical enterprises, to take a large part in the railroad field in this country, and when the story gained currency that it was this group its position weakened by the heavy declines in the market value of securities purchased early in the year in furtherance of its plans, that had been the sick member of the financial bond market, sentiment responded instantly to the changed state of affairs.

It was estimated in authoritative quarters at the time that something like one-fifth of the Rock Island's $140,000,000 capitalization had passed into those hands.

ASK COURT TO MODIFY HEINZE INJUNCTION

The failure of F. Augustus Heinze, the New York copper magnate, to appear last Tuesday before F. Rockwood Hall, master in the suits of Heinze and others against A. D. F. Adams and others, as ordered by the Supreme Court, led the defendants, who are prominent Boston bankers and stock brokers, to appear to-day before Judge Braley in the Supreme Court and ask for a modification of the injunction so that they might dispose of $600,000 worth of stocks and bonds. Judge Braley said that if Mr. Heinze did not appear in Boston to testify before the master on September 1 he would then seriously consider the question of modifying the injunction.

L. D. BRANDEIS PRESIDES OVER PEACE MEETING

NEW YORK, July 28.—Louis D. Brandeis, of Boston is presiding at the joint meeting of the committee of ten from each side which is holding a peace conference to-day which it is hoped will settle the cloakmakers' strike. The strike affects about 70,000 workers. The conference is being held in Room 5246 in the Metropolitan Life Building and the committee represent the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Association on one side and the strikers on the other.

Mr. Brandeis was induced to come here to preside by Meyer London and Julius Henry Cohen. Attorney London, who is legal adviser for the strikers, said: "I am glad that Mr. Brandeis is coming here to act as requested. We know him to be broad-minded and we know he will be fair to both sides."

The membership of the peace committees has not been made public, but it is understood that Abraham Rosenberg, president of the International Home Garment Workers, and Alexander Bloch, chairman of the strikers' settlement committee, will be among the representatives of the tailors.

The demands of the latter vary with the grade of work made in the different factories. It is expected that the peace conference will last several days.

HELD WITHOUT BAIL IN DEATH CASE

Michael Columbo, an Italian, of No. 549 High street, Dedham, was to-day held without bail for the grand jury, charged with the murder of Raphael Ferrari, in Dedham, Saturday night, July 16. The murder occurred during a quarrel in a Dedham pool room. Columbo struck Ferrari over the head with a billiard cue. Ferrari died from the effects of the blow.

MALDEN'S TAX RATE GOES UP

The tax rate for the current year, announced by the assessors of Malden, is $18.50, which is $2.80 in excess of last year's rate. This is the second largest rate in the history of the city and it was then $19.20 in 1908.

LARGEST AVIATION CONTEST EVER HELD IN U. S. FOR BOSTON

Aviators from the four corners of the earth—most of them famous as pioneers and experts in aviation—will gather in Boston September 3 to 13, when a notable meet will take place on Soldiers Field, Brighton, and aeroplanes of all the latest types will be shown. It is expected that the exhibition will prove the biggest event of its kind ever held in this country. The contest will be held under the auspices of the Harvard Aeronautical Society and an advisory committee composed of leading business men of Greater Boston.

The prize list alone is sufficient to make it one of the most important aerial contests anywhere. In all, $75,000 has been guaranteed for prize money, and of this $40,000 has already been specified for excellence in certain lines. One of the great features is the prize of $10,000 for the fastest time made between the Stadium and Boston Light and return, a competition in which all the great aviators will take part.

$5,000 for Dropping Bombs.

Another feature prize will be that of $5,000 for best record at dropping bombs on a battleship during the meet. The prize list to date is:

	First.	Second.	Third.
Speed	$3,000	$2,000	$1,000
Altitude	3,000	2,000	1,000
Duration	2,000	1,000
Distance	2,000	1,000
Slowest lap	1,000	500
Getaway	100	50
Accuracy	500	250

Other prizes will be offered for:

Fastest time between Soldiers Field and Boston Light and return, $10,000.

For best record dropping bombs on battleship during meet, $5,000 and the Harvard cup.

In case of world's records being broken in any one of these events, $1,000 will be added to the first prizes as above.

Additional prizes will be announced later for novice competitors.

One of Wrights Coming.

Among the aviators who are to compete and whose names are household words in the United States will be one of the Wright brothers, probably Wilbur; Charles Foster Willard, Boston's own inventor and celebrated aviator who has made a score of successful flights in different parts of the country; Walter Brookins of New York, Arthur Johnstone of New York, Glenn Curtis, C. K. Hamilton, A. V. Roe of London, M. Masson of Paris, Harry Harkness of New York, Clifford B. Harmon of New York, Charles Glidden of Boston and Albert Tracia and wife of France. More entries are expected, a number of aerocraft owners having signified their intention of competing.

That one of the Wrights will attend is the assurance brought to Boston by James V. Martin, manager of the Harvard Aeronautical Society, who has just returned from Dayton, O. The brothers promised that one of them would come here and would stay during the entire meet and possibly participate in the flights.

Twenty-one Air Craft Coming.

Contracts already signed show that Roe of England will fly his triplane, the only one in this country, and that three French aviators will fly monoplanes. There will be at least twenty-one machines of types shown in Boston. They will range from Charles J. Glidden's balloon Boston to Roe's triplane.

The use of Soldiers Field with the approval of President Lowell and the college authorities and Mayor Fitzgerald provides a location for the meet that is unsurpassed both for the unobstructed manoeuvring of the aeroplanes in the initial stages of the flights and descents and for the accommodation of the spectators.

Flights in the Afternoons.

The generally more favorable atmospheric conditions prevailing in the afternoon will bring most if not all of the competitions at that time, the morning being devoted to demonstrations of machines, practice flights and instructions operating the various types of machines shown.

The Curtiss-Hamilton controversy, in which Curtiss contends that Hamilton is under contract to fly only for him until the expiration of an alleged contract which releases Hamilton from the employ of Curtiss on January 1, 1912, is not worrying the managers of the meet. Hamilton was Curtiss's particularly brilliant air pilot, and when the daring hero of the New York-Philadelphia flight decamped from the Curtiss billwick, the latter took steps to prevent him from appearing at the Boston meet. Hamilton, however, asserts that he has a letter from Curtiss releasing him from all obligations.

Boston is concerned in the matter in that if Curtiss is successful in his efforts to restrain Hamilton from flying the meet will lose an interesting feature. But, even as Curtiss is insistent that Hamilton should not appear here, the plucky airman is juts as obstinate and insists that he will appear.

Certain of Hamilton.

Meanwhile the Boston promoters are taking matters easy. They have contracts with both Curtiss and Hamilton to appear and confident that these compacts will be good, there is no unrest in the minds of the executive committee of the meet. They are certain that both men will compete, in which event interesting things may develop, that is, if the feeling runs as high as appears on the surface.

W. A. P. Willard, who is in charge of the arrangements, has been laboring incessingly to make the affair the biggest of its kind ever held. Mr. Willard is an inventor of note and it is his son, Charles F. Willard, who is to be one of the leading competitors in the meet.

Following is the list of entries and the type of machines the men will drive: Glenn Curtiss, Curtiss biplane; C. K. Hamilton, Curtiss biplane; C. F. Willard, Curtiss biplane; Walter Brookins, Wright biplane; Arthur Johnstone, Wright biplane; A. V. Roe, Roe triplane; Cromwell Dixon, dirigible; M. Masson, Vendome monoplane; Harry Harkness, Antoinette 100 h. p.; Clifford B. Harmon, Farman biplane; Chas. Glidden, Balloon "Boston"; Albert Tracia and wife, Mankita.

A Luxury!

The tariff has been revised in accordance with the Republican doctrine of protecting home industries and American labor. It did not raise the rate of duty on a single common food product. The increases made were on luxuries and articles not of ordinary use. It affords no more than adequate protection to the industries of the nation, and is fair alike to consumers, laborers and producers.—FROM THE PLATFORM PASSED BY THE OHIO REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

BOSTON BARS PICTURES OF THE BIG FIGHT

In the great moral uprising against prize fighting and the exhibition of the Jeffries-Johnson prize-fight pictures, lawmakers and Christian workers throughout the entire country have already done some substantial work.

Boston and Chicago were the first large cities to take a firm stand in the matter, and as the pioneers in a fight that will assuredly be a great success the officials of these cities will come in for much of the credit.

Mayor Fitzgerald promptly put the ban on the exhibition of prize-fight pictures in this city and has given notice that when licenses are granted for the coming season next week they will be given out with the express understanding that there are to be no showing of prize-fight pictures.

Chicago Mayor Against Pictures.

A leased wire dispatch from Chicago today says that Mayor Busse, after a conference with Chief of Police Steward and Morporation Counsel Brundage to day, flatly refused to issue permits for further exhibitions of prize-fight pictures. The refusal was made in the face of tremendous pressure brought to bear by Aaron J. Jones, who paid $60,000 for the exclusive rights to the Reno fight pictures in Illinois.

In New York the clergymen are greatly aroused and to-day they were busy calling on the best element in the city to attend to-night's Cooper Union mass meeting to protest against Mayor Gaynor's attitude in permitting the pictures to be displayed and to call on Governor Hughes to act. At every New York noonday prayer meeting in the city the Christian Endeavor forces caused to-night's meeting to be announced, and all Christian men and women were urged in prayer and exhortation to fill the old meeting hall.

At the headquarters of the Anti-Immoral Moving Picture Association many letters were received by A. L. Lowand, the temporary head, indicating that the sentiment against the pictures is growing all over the country. The strange position of New York City, where grown men cannot legally see a prize fight, and yet where their wives and children can see pictures of one of the cruelest ring battles ever fought, is provoking unfavorable comment everywhere.

Many Pledge Support.

A preliminary meeting of the new association was called last evening at which some of the clergymen who will back the anti-fight picture movement were present. Lowland, the temporary head, declared that it was desired to keep the details of this meeting and the names of those who attended secret for the present.

The Rev. Charles L. Clist of the First Reformed Church of Harlem, spent the entire day visiting the clergymen of other churches and urging all to join in the general movement. These clergymen were asked particularly by Dr. Clist to attend the meeting. The doctor received great encouragement, showing how strong is the local sentiment against the brutal, demoralizing pictures. Dr. Clist had many pledges of support, not only for the meeting, but for all future moves the association may make. The volunteers of America, the Epworth League, the Brooklyn Christian Endeavor Union, labor and woman suffragism will all be represented on the platform, and it is expected that one or two additional speakers of note will be present.

Lawmakers Join League.

Many additional names of New England lawmakers have been enrolled as members of the National League of Lawmakers to Stop Prize Fighting. Excerpts from some of their letters follow:

W. S. KNOWLTON, State Senator, of Guilford, Me.—I regard prize fighting as brutal in itself and detrimental in its influence upon the people. Passing through the street of a prominent city in Maine on July 4 I saw a large crowd composed of middle-aged men, young men, boys, girls and women waiting to hear the report of the prize fight in Nevada.

As I caught the words, "First blood for Jeffries," and heard the shout from the crowd and noticed that boys and girls were waving handkerchiefs and shouting, I could heardly realize that I was living in the twentieth century, in the State of Maine and in the United States.

The effect all over the country is so debasing and satanic I cannot express in words my deep disgust for the whole affair. Yes, by all means, enroll me in the National League of Lawmakers to Stop Prize Fighting.

J. C. SAWYER, Ward 8, Portland, Me.—I will gladly co-operate with you in this matter.

WENDELL P. MARDEN, Alderman, Newton Centre—I am heartily in sympathy with the movement. I should be glad to lend my influence to assist in abolishing any debasing sport like prize fighting.

EXTRADITED ON FORGERY CHARGE

After resisting extradition for nearly four months, Heinrich Zentner, who for the past three years has operated a metal exchange at No. 170 Summer street under the name of the Import and Export Associates, has been ordered back to Germany by United States Commissioner Hayes to answer a charge of forging drafts to the extent of more than $6,000.

Zentner will be taken to New York tomorrow night by Deputy United States Marshals Ruhl and Edwards preparatory to sailing on the steamer Kaiserin Auguste Victoria on Saturday.

LIQUOR FIGHT AGAIN BIG ISSUE IN TAFT STATE

COLUMBUS, July 28.—With the Republicans standing on a platform that gives unqualified support to President Taft and Warren G. Harding, choice of the Taft-Foraker forces chosen gubernatorial candidate, leading politicians to-day declared that the liquor interest would play an important part in the coming campaign.

Though he has supported local option in the paper he owns, at Marion, Mr. Harding owns brewery stock, and for that reason the strong opposition of the powerful anti-saloon interests is declared possible by the wiseacres.

Intrenched in office and cheered by two gubernatorial victories in five years the Democrats headed by Governor Harmon, taking up the battle to beat the G. O. P. in Taft's home State, have already laid their plans to make the most of the fact that Boss George B. Cox of Cincinnati, who is opposed by the drys, virtually gave Harding the nomination by withdrawing his support from Judge Oren Britt Brown of Dayton on the third ballot.

Hot Struggle Expected.

The hottest struggle of a generation in Ohio is expected during the campaign. In this the saloon interests are declared to be an important factor also for if Harding takes a stand against them it is believed that they will throw their support in another direction, materially weakening the Republican position.

"Boss Cox himself could not swing Hamilton County to Harding if the latter makes no statement of his liquor attitude," said one of the Cincinnati delegation to-day. The real attitude of Cox is one of the enigmas of the situation. Many of the most influential of his opponents did not hesitate to say that they fear the course he may pursue in the campaign.

They point to the fact that Cox gave Harmon a big majority in his bailiwick in the last fight for the governorship. Those who dislike Cox profess to see a sufficient motive for the repetition of such a course.

Roosevelt's Position.

That has rankled ever since, admit Cox's lieutenants. And Harding was backed first and last by the Taft-Foraker forces, the support of Congressman Nicholas Longworth being to a great extent tentative, according to to-day's developments. The attitude of Theodore Roosevelt is one of the chief topics of the groups that still gather about the political headquarters here.

The Radical Republicans profess to believe with good cause that Mr. Roosevelt would have taken the stump in Ohio had James R. Garfield been named or if Longworth had decided to make a hot fight and had won.

The failure of the platform adopted to speak strongly for a tariff commission and others of his measures precludes the possibility of Roosevelt taking an active part in the campaign according to the latest information.

HUSBAND DEAD IN GAS EXPLOSION

NASHUA, N. H., July 28.—Irving H. Phillips, a prosperous confectionery manufacturer of this city and Laconia, is dead to-day, and his wife is badly injured as the result of gas and fire at their home, No. 118 Walnut street.

Neighbors heard a report, followed by a crash and a woman's screams. An instant later Mrs. Phillips rushed from the house enveloped in flames. Phillips aws discovered lifeless in a chair in the pantry. Mrs. Phillips said Mr. Phillips died of asphyxiation by gas from the range on which he started to cook a steak. He failed to light it and, sitting down, fell asleep, inhaling the gas. Mrs. Phillips went home, lighted the gas in the kitchen, opened the pantry door and an explosion followed.

MISTRESS ARRESTED, DOG ATTACKS POLICE

While attempting to arrest Mrs. Delia Geulnonan, of No. 23 Genesee street, South End, Patrolman James N. Nelson, of the East Dedham Street Station, was bitten about the legs by a vicious bulldog. He is at the City Hospital under treatment. He beat the dog into unconsciousness with his club. According to the policeman Mrs. Geulnonan was intoxicated. As he placed his hands upon the woman, the dog came into the room and before he could get away the dog had sunk his teeth into his leg.

MOTORMAN HAS A WIFE TOO MANY

PROVIDENCE, July 28.—When arraigned in the district court at East Providence on a charge of living with a woman at Riverside who passed for his wife while he had another living in Connecticut, Napoleon L. Roy, thirty-four, was bound over to the Grand Jury in $1,000. Roy is a motorman. The police say Roy married in Waterbury, Ct., about seven years ago. About two years ago Roy married Miss Clara E. Sherman at Barrington, and since that time has lived with her in Riverside.

MARSHALL WILDER IS CRITICALLY ILL

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 28.—Marshall P. Wilder is critically ill here, suffering from acute indigestion. His physician, when consulted to-day, said his patient may not live. Many friends attempted to call on Mr. Wilder but were refused admission to his room, as his condition is too severe. News of Mr. Wilder's illness came as a surprise to his friends, who hurried to his bedside and sent him telegrams.

FAMOUS AFRICAN HUNTER IS DEAD

LONDON, July 28.—Sir Henry Tichborne, who as a child was defendant in Arthur Orton's historic attempt to possess himself of the Tichborne estate, died today. Sir Henry was a famous big game hunter. He returned from an expedition to Africa last Saturday and on his arrival home had a paralytic stroke, to which he succumbed.

AUTOIST WRECKS CAR TO SAVE DOG

WATERBURY, Ct., July 28.—Charles Stretch of New York, operating a touring car for M. M. Schwab, Jr., of New York, saved a tiny black and tan dog, running after its little mistress in Mill Plain, but he broke a wheel and axle of the machine in doing so. No one in the car suffered seriously.

MILITIA STONED ON WAY TO STRIKE

HAMILTON, July 28.—Company F, Third Regiment, National Guard of Ohio, left here to-day for Columbus, called to duty in the street car strike. They took no ammunition. As the company marched to the station crowds stoned them.

MRS. SAGE TO HELP WOMEN CONQUER AIR

NEW YORK, July 28.—While vainly waiting for four hours to see the aeroplanes fly over the aviation field near Mineola, Mrs. Russell Sage, one of the wealthiest women in the world, announced that she is willing to finance to any reasonable extent any woman who wishes to carry on practical aeronautical experiments. Incidentally, it leaked out that Mrs. Sage has furnished the financial support which has enabled Miss E. Lillian Todd to build the aeroplane which has earned for her the distinction of being America's only woman aviator.

"I am deeply interested in aviation," said Mrs. Sage, "but I have never witnessed a flight."

"I am very glad to see that women are actively engaged in an effort to solve the problem of human flight. It always stirs me to great enthusiasm when I find women engaged in an effort to help in such progressive activities. I am earnestly interested in all efforts made by women along such lines. I will willingly aid Miss Todd or any other woman who is attempting to do something practical in building any kind of aerocraft. I believe it is a grand object for women's activities. I shall gladly give them any aid in my power to bestow.

"I have sometimes been asked if I would institute a fund to assist in aeronautical experiments. I have been unable to answer the question. I do not know enough about it to enable him to decide just what I may do. But I can say that I am anxious and eager to devote money to any worthy purpose that will swell the sum total of human progress. What I may do about a fund for aeronautical experiments remains to be seen.

"Personally I do not wish to fly. Even the automobile is too swift for me. I was born in the age of horse travel and I must confess that I still think there is nothing more pleasureable than to ride behind a pair of safe and steady-going horses."

The high winds prevented either Captain Thomas S. Baldwin or Clifford B. Harmon from going up. Mrs. Sage hopefully remained in her auto and was the very last person to leave the field.

Miss Todd at one time was employed by Mrs. Sage as a stenographer.

BROCKTON MILKMEN MUST TABOO WATER

BROCKTON, July 28.—"The law says the minimum fine for having watered milk to sell is $50, but there will be no more minimum fines on this charge. I have tired of it," declared Judge Warren A. Reed in the police court. "I intend this to apply to producers. As to the retailers, that is a bit different, but the community must be protected and they must find out what they are selling. The retailer's protection is to deal with honest men." Judge Reed imposed a total of $250 in fines.

DRISCOLL MUST TAKE EXAMINATION

Deputy Penal Commissioner Dennis D. Driscoll will not be given a non-competitive examination for his job, according to a communication which Penal Commissioner Fred S. Gore has received from the Civil Service Commission.

The letter stated that the holder of the job of deputy commissioner would be notified of the date that the commission will set for the holding of examinations for this position and that he will be given an opportunity to take the examination at the same time the other candidates for the place take it.

RICH WIDOW WHO OFFERS WOMEN AVIATION HELP

Mrs. Russell Sage.

"1915" GIRLS WILL SWIM

The biggest card in the Summer schedule of Boston-1915 games is slated for Saturday afternoon, when swimming meets will be held at Dewey Beach and North End Park and track meets at the Marcella street, First street and North Brighton playgrounds.

Henry Higgins, in charge at Dewey Beach, has already received 100 single entries, and this year the girls are training for the meet as hard as the boys. Mary O'Callaghan, who was defeated in the half-mile last year by Elsie Ackroyd, is entered in the 50-yard dash. Florence Sullivan, who took first place in fancy diving a year ago, will compete in the same event this year and has a close competitor in Anna Grant.

Joseph McNamara, the director at North End Beach, had 146 entries last year and expects at least 160 competitors on Saturday. Rose Pitonof will be the drawing card in the fifty-yard dash for girls. On Sunday she will attempt to swim from the Charlestown bridge to Boston Light. Mary McDonough, Ester Donohough, Frances Lane and Mary Barry are also entered in the girls' events.

Last year Marcella Street won the final track meet at Wood Island and F. L. O'Brien, the director in charge, says that his boys ought to repeat the trick this year. Mr. O'Brien has stirred up a lot of interest in the neighborhood clubs and expects a big turnout. The Marcella Street meet is open to residents of Roxbury and Jamaica Plain.

There is unusual interest in the North Brighton meet in charge of W. C. Mathews, the old Harvard varsity baseball and football man, because of the rivalry between the "Barry's Corner crowd" of Allston and the North Brighton boys.

F. J. O'Brien expects about 109 entries in the First street meet, which is open to residents of South Boston. The South Boston Athletic Club is lending great assistance in furnishing such officials as Edward Hopkins, James B. Connolly, Frank Ford and Dr. MacDonnell.

IVERNIA LANDS WITH NOTABLES IN HER CABIN

Among the passengers to arrive today aboard the Cunard line steamer Ivernia was Herbert Myrick, president and editor of the Orange Judd Farmer and kindred publications, who declared that he would give out a report on crop, market and industrial conditions in Europe which would send American securities sky-rocketing.

"The crop conditions are very poor in all Europe except Russia," said Mr. Myrick. "It is certain that there will be a great market for all American products. What I have seen in my stay in Europe convinces me that we are on the eve of twelve months of unparalleled prosperity."

Other passengers aboard the Ivernia were A. H. Smith, vice-president of the New York Central Railroad; Ernest W. Longfellow, son of the poet; Mrs. Augusta N. Rantoul, wife of the Boston architect; Paul Thorndike and Mrs. Thorndike, with their three children, who had been studying at Munich, and Adelbert Dosa, reputed to be the largest landholder in Hungary, and Miss Louisa Topham of Bradford, England, who came here to become the wife of Edward W. Webster, a machinist at the General Electric Company works in Lynn. They were married by the Rev. James A. Burns at the wharf.

BLAME O'MEARA, SAYS PEABODY

Frederick W. Peabody, in commenting upon the dispute between Mayor Fitzgerald and Police Commissioner O'Meara as to the necessity of increasing the police force in Boston Common, says:

"As I live in proximity to the Common the members of my family, as a matter of convenience, cross it very frequently. When the Mayor undertook to procure the appointment of special police in order that the hoodlums, hoboes and low creatures who have practically monopolized the Common might be kept in restraint, I was much delighted.

"I, at the same time, wrote to the Police Commissioner and told him of specific instances in broad daylight of gross indecency amounting to serious crime upon the Common, of which a woman well-known to me had been the victim.

"The commissioner is determined in any and all events, that decent people, who find it agreeable or convenient to be upon the Common, shall not have the police protection to which they are entitled if he can help it. The only possible inference from his published utterances is that if decent people are not satisfied with the indecencies perpetrated upon the Common they should avoid the Common and permit it to be given over wholly to the indecent element of the community.

"If a horrible crime should be perpetrated upon the Common by one of the many low creatures seeking a woman victim there nobody will now have any doubt of where to place the official responsibility for it."

"OLD HOME" FETE DISTURBER SENTENCED

John M. Clark, who said he lived at No. 156 Endicott street, North End, was given one month in the House of Correction by Judge Perrin in the West Roxbury District Court to-day after he had pleaded guilty to committing an assault on Reserve Officer John M. Hogarty of the Jamaica Plain Station at Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, yesterday afternoon, while residents of the North End were holding an "Old Home" week celebration.

REVERE RECEPTION TO YANKEES TO-NIGHT

There will be something doing every minute this evening at the Scenic Temple, Revere Beach, when "The Speed Boys" and the New York Yankees will be tendered a reception by the Empire City Quartette. Hundreds of fans will follow the players there in hopes of gaining admission to this big event at the popular playhouse. The management has spared no expense in co-operating with this well-known quartette in arranging a good time for these "world-beaters." The quartette will sing George Moriarty's song, "I Can't Miss That Ball Game." Pictures will also be shown of the world's series between the Detroits and Pittsburgs. Other interesting events have been arranged.

RAILROAD PACT WITH CANADA IS PLANNED

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Chairman Knapp of the Interstate Commerce Commission will leave Washington for Ottawa, Can., about August 10 to meet J. P. Mabee, chief railroad commissioner of Canada. They will hold a conference to devise plans for controlling international railroad traffic between the United States and Canada on joint through rates.

TIRED OF LIFE, PUTS END TO IT

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 28.—Tearing her marriage license into bits and leaving a note for her husband saying she was tired of life, Mrs. Jessie L. Parker, aged thirty, of No. 103 Bogman street, committed suicide by asphyxiation.

A Bad Lot OF ANIMALS

A BULLDOG attacked Patrolman J. N. Nelson of Station 5, yesterday, while he was arresting Della Geulnoman on Genesee street, South End. He was given Pasteur treatment at City Hospital.

COWS, being driven in a herd through Everett by J. H. Raskey of Cliftondale, stampeded. Raskey was severely hurt in the mixup.

A SNAKE which nested in the "rat" worn by Mary Wood at Richmond, Va., bit her several times and she is in a serious condition.

A TURTLE weighing forty pounds snapped off a gas pipe in Herman Jacobs's "model" barn at Roton Point, Ct., and asphyxiated 100 chicken and three pigs.

A HORSE attacked J. H. McDonald, a veterinarian, at Palmer, biting off a portion of his ear.

A PIG bit Joseph Messarick of Worcester on the thumb, causing his death by blood poisoning.

A CAT attacked Mrs. W. D. Curtis at Lawrence, injuring her so badly a physician had to be called.

CATS have so overrun Berkley, Va., that a detachment of troops has been ordered out to kill every feline in town.

A HORSE kicked Timothy Cronin of Westerly so viciously that he is dying in the Rhode Island Hospital.

Fritz Kreisler's four solos prove him a master of the violin

These four numbers exhibit well the marvelous versatility of this artist who has truly been proclaimed one of the few really great masters of the violin.

At the age of ten Kreisler won first prize at the Vienna Conservatory, and in his twelfth year astonished the professors at the Conservatoire in Paris by winning the Prix de Rome, an unprecedented occurrence. As a boy prodigy he toured America, then returned to Germany to serve his time in the army. During those four years he abandoned violin practice entirely, but on his reappearance in 1899 his bow was as true and his technique as flawless as ever. Since then he has made six American tours, his present tour being literally a series of triumphs.

RED SOX SEE EASY VICTORY OVER YANKS

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

The Red Sox will go after those New York fellows again this afternoon and it is good betting that they will not slip up on several chances to win as they did yesterday. It was an even split as everybody knows, but the Speed Boys ought to have had both games.

At that, there is nothing to get peevish about. The situation to-day is this: The Red Sox hold second place safely, the New Yorks having failed to gain anything on them and they are half a game nearer the leaders than they were at the close of Tuesday's battles. The Athletics have a lead of only five clear games, having lost to the Senators while the double-header was being played here.

It is a slow climb, but the Red Sox are getting there inch by inch.

Things will settle down to real business at the yard this afternoon. There will be a big crowd, but there will be no need of ropes in the outfield and some of the Red Sox clouts will earn what they are worth instead of being confined to two bases as was the necessary rule yesterday.

BATTING ORDER.

BOSTON.	NEW YORK.

Joe Wood Nearly Ready.

It is possible that Joe Wood may consider himself well enough to pitch for the Speed Boys this afternoon. His leg certainly didn't seem to bother him any when he was prancing around the bases in practice. If he doesn't pitch to-day he will go in to-morrow or Saturday. Arellanes is ready for the word and it is likely that Donovan will send him to the box.

For the other fellows Quinn will doubtless be the twirling selection, or, if not, a youngster named Fisher. Of the fourteen men the New Yorks brought from New York five were pitchers. Quinn did not come with them as he went to Pennsylvania to see a sick sister. He is expected to-day.

President Taylor of the Boston Club said to-day he wished the New Yorks had their full strength out instead of coming here as cripples. These so-called baseball cripples have a way of upsetting all calculations. If Boston is beaten in the series by a supposedly inferior team it sounds and feels worse than as if the club succumbed to a regular line-up.

But the Red Sox have no fear of losing the series. There are three more games to play and if the locals do not take at least two of them there will be some surprised ball players in this vicinity. Our boys will be everlastingly at 'em again this afternoon.

Pretty Good "Cripples."

There is nothing the matter with the team the New Yorks are putting in the field for this series. True, their captain and first-baseman, Hal Chase is not with them, but Hal couldn't have done much if any, better than Jack Knight did in the double header. Austin is just as much of a regular as Frank Laporte, who is laid up and Hemphill is a superior fielder to Harry Wolter and can certainly bat as well as Wolter has been going lately.

No, the New Yorks are not a team of cripples by any means. It must be remembered that the Red Sox captain and third-baseman is out of the game and Joe Wood has been out for some time. It is a pretty even break as far as cripples are concerned when you come to think of it.

Established since 1879.

BROOKLYN, July 28.—The Doves wind up their two games series with the Brooklyn boys to-day and then comes some hot old scraps with the Giants for the rest of the week.

It's two straight the visitors are after, since they took the one game played by a 2 to 1 score on Tuesday and showed that previous defects at the hands of Bill Dahlen's men were mistaken. The fans are convinced that the western flight of the Doves, when they cleaned up in good shape for a cellar team, was no myth, and were to be considered dangerous while struggling to get out of last position.

As every game between the two teams settled the ownership of that undesirable low spot in the standing the fight was due to be more than passing interest in the result.

Before and After the Game

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

The Red Sox are doing very well, thank you. If they continue to gain half a game a day on the Athletics as they have been doing for several days, that lead of five full games will soon be wiped out. The question was asked in this column a few days ago: Have the Athletics begun to slump?" This seems to be the proper time to repeat the question. We await an answer from Philadelphia.

"I am watching those Athletics closely." said Patsy Donovan to the assembled reporters to-day, "and mark my words" (every reporter made a mark on his pad), "they will have tough sledding on the coming Western trip. My problem is to prevent slumps on my own team, but I have no fear of that. The Red Sox are going along splendidly. I have no complaint to make. We are bound to lose a game now and then. All I ask is that the lost games don't come in bunches."

The crowd (28,228) let out a mighty roar when the score of the Athletics-Washington game was posted on the bulletin board which shows that our public knows what is going on in the baseball line.

Duffy Lewis sandwiched in a strike-out between a couple of two-base hits in the second game. If the combination had come any other possible way, the Red Sox would have won. There were three on when Duffey whiffed three times at three high ones in the eighth. One of those two-baggers would have put the game on ice.

The New Yorks had just tied it up in the first half of the round on three errors and a two-bagger. It was a shame the way they got away with those two tallies. Roche, the first man up, was safe on Engle's poor throw to first after handling a hard ball. Austin popped to Gardner. Then Mitchell dropped a puny little Texas leaguer in left close to the foul line. Lewis came racing in for it, but stopped suddenly and made no effort to prevent the ball from bouncing into the crowd. It did go into the crowd and that meant two bases for Mitchell according to ground rules.

Ford came along with a fly to Speaker who made a throw home a mile high. Roche easily scored and Mitchell made for third. The ball sailed away over Kleinow's head, but Charlie Smith was backing up and he carefully and conscientiously tossed the ball out in left field so Mitchell tallied also which tied up the game.

Things went along until the eleventh when the New Yorks fell on Smith and the crack of the base hits that followed sounded on the silent air like the back of a hairbrush on mamma's pet. There were no cheers when the New Yorks were making those five swats and scampering around the bases. But the yells broke loose when the Red Sox filled up the sacks in the last of the eleventh. There were two out and Engle, who had already pasted the ball for a couple of two-baggers was at the bat. He drove a solid whack to Roche, who had every reason to fumble, but he handled the ball cleanly and shot it to Knight for the thirty-third out and the day's sport was over.

Jack Kleinow worked well behind the bat in the second game. He knew the weaknesses of the New York batters and he signalled Smith to pitch 'em what they didn't like. Smith got along swimmingly until the eighth. Then came that nightmare already described and after that the awful eleventh.

If Tom Hughes, who pitched the first game for New York, had any sporting blood in his veins he would back himself against a snail to prove who could work the faster in the box. Tom could make the wager as large as he likes and the Boston fans would cover it. Speaking of snails, Russell Ford is not greased lightning either.

Those nice new, clean, light-blue uniforms of the New Yorks are very nifty and the team makes a better appearance on the field than any other club that has come here this year.

Charlie Hall was chased to the clubhouse in the first game. He was coaching on first and allowed Wagner (or Wagner allowed himself) to be caught napping. As he passed Umpire Kerin he hissed a few well-chosen words in the ump's ear and it was all off for Charlie.

The photogs, as everyone knows, are gally fellows, but they reached the limit when they sneaked a few friends out on the side lines. Can you beat 'em?

Patsy Donovan got an awful scare in the first game. Speaker had been caught napping off first and after dusting off his panties he approached Umpire Connolly and said a few words to him. Patsy saw visions of Speaker being chased out of the game followed by a suspension. And he needed Tris in his business.

"Get away from there," yelled Patsy across the diamond.

Speaker continued to talk with Connolly and Patsy danced up and down almost beside himself. Finally he quieted down. What Speaker said to Connolly was this:

"Tommy, old boy, you had me dead to rights. I was out fair and square and you called the turn."

"You're all right, Tris," replied Connolly, "and I'm glad you take it the way you did."

CRITERION A. A. DEFEATS TYPOS

Plans are being made to-day for another game between the fast Criterion A. A. and Boston Typo team, which battled yesterday at the Locust street grounds. The first game ended in a dispute in the first half of the eighth inning, with the score 6 to 3 in favor of the printers. Until the unsatisfactory ending the game was well played, having resolved itself into a pitchers' battle.

Higgins was easily the star of the game. The Woburn boy pitched classy ball, allowing the Typos but one hit. He struck out eight men, and had the Typos at his mercy throughout the latter part of the game.

The game was forfeited to the Criterion A. A., after the Typos had refused to accept the umpire's decision on an infield hit made by White.

18-FOOTER BAT WILL RACE AT MARBLEHEAD

PROVIDENCE, July 28.—Harvey J. Flint, owner of the eighteen-footer Bat, has reconsidered his decision not to send his boat to Marblehead for the races with the Massachusetts Bay boats.

The boats going from here will be the Arrow II, Hugi and Bat. They will all start Saturday night from Newport, Bat and Hugi in tow.

Hollis Burgess of Boston to-day announced that he will bring his crack racing sloop Virginia, which he bought this year from a New York yachtsman to race the May Queen, the champion.

SHORT SHIP RACE MEET CALLED OFF

ALPENA, Mich., July 28.—A shortage of horses to fill the events programmed for to-day caused the officials of the Alpena Driving Club to close the Short Ship races here with two days' racing instead of three.

The favorite, Hal B., Jr., won the 2:20 pace in three straight heats, leading a procession each heat. Tom McNamara, the favorite in the 2:20 trot, made a poor showing, going off his feet several times in each heat. Francis W. won the first two heats, Nellie G. the last three.

This was Nellie's first appearance this season after a severe sickness, and when she caught her stride she had no trouble landing the money.

JACK JOHNSON IS INVITED TO NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I., July 28.—Mrs. Lucinda Scott, the fashionable boarding housekeeper in Burnside avenue has invited Jack Johnson to come to Newport with his touring car. Johnson says: "I'll try to come." He wants to know "what the swells down the avenue would do to him."

JOHNSON SUED AGAIN.

NEW YORK, July 28.—More court troubles have piled up on Jack Johnson, the champion heavyweight. A suit for $5,000 for alleged breach of contract was filed against him by Barney Gerard and the estate of Henry C. Miner, Inc., theatrical producing managers, while an additional $1,610 is demanded by the plaintiffs on the ground that it was paid to the pugilistic actor under duress.

OWENS TRADED AGAIN.

FINAL SEAWANHAKA RACE SAILED TO-DAY

MANCHESTER, July 28.—Although weather conditions early to-day were such as to appear impossible to sail the third race for the Seawanhaka Cup, yet the yachtsmen were hopeful that the boats could get away this afternoon on schedule time. To-day's race is over a triangular course and is scheduled to start at 1 o'clock.

Undaunted by their double defeat, the crew of the challenger St. Lawrence are confident that their boat will cross the line a winner in to-day's race. The defender Massachusetts won the second completed contest in the series by a margin of eight minutes twenty-eight seconds. It was a hollow victory. At no point of the race did the challenger even threaten to take the lead.

Leg after leg of the windward and leeward course she was completely and hopelessly outsailed. On only one leg, the very last of the race, did she make faster time than the defender, and that was because she carried a ballooner while the Massachusetts was content with a working jib.

The Massachusetts beat the St. Lawrence a total of seven minutes one second on the three windward legs, and made a net gain of one minute twenty-seven seconds on the leeward leg.

On each windward leg the challenger overstood the mark, while the Massachusetts' course was perfectly sailed.

Finishing the first round the challenger's crew made a mess of taking in the spinnaker, and in their hurry to set the working jib tore the bolt rope on the luff of the sail half off. More than two minutes was lost getting out a new jib.

The wind was light from southeast at the start. The Massachusetts had the better of the getaway, crossing twenty seconds after the signal.

BIG PRIZE MONEY FOR BIKE RIDERS

Alec McLean, the new manager of the Revere cycle track, has not only made a hit with the followers of the game, but he has made a decided hit with the riders themselves, owing to the large purses he has hung up for the races at the beach track, Saturday evening. Alec has offered the riders $1,500 in prizes, the largest amount ever offered by the management of the track for one meeting.

The professional sprinters will have every opportunity to gather in the coin for in addition to the prizes for the first four winners, Alec has offered special prizes for the leaders of each half mile and that means twenty prizes in the ten-mile race and ten extra prizes in the five-mile race for the class B riders.

DENIES BURKETT TO MANAGE THE BROWNS

ST. LOUIS, July 28.—President Hedges of the St. Louis Browns, when shown the story sent out from Worcester to the effect that Jesse Burkett of the Worcester New England League team may manage the Browns next season, threw a bucket of ice water upon it by saying that O'Connor will continue as manager of his team. President Hedges says the Burkett story has no foundation.

FALL RIVER BOWLING CLUB MEETS BOSTON

Next Saturday the Fall River Bowling Green Club will bring five or six rinks, which means twenty or twenty-four men from Fall River, to play a return match with the Boston Bowling Green Club, on their green at Franklin Field. The game will probably be called in the neighborhood of 2 o'clock, and will be contested from that time until five or half past.

PACKEY M'FARLAND TO MEET WOLGAST

CHICAGO, July 28.—Packy McFarland's chance at the lightweight championship of the world has come sooner than he expected.

Ad Wolgast, holder of the title, has accepted the terms offered in New Orleans by Tommy Walsh's club for a battle there Labor Day with McFarland, the contest to go twenty rounds.

Tom Jones, Wolgast's manager, last night wired that he had accepted the New Orleans bid for the contest, but that he would insist upon having a guarantee of at least $7,500 for Wolgast's end and would want the privilege of taking 45 per cent. of the gross receipts if that exceeded the guarantee.

The weight will be 133 pounds at the ringside.

NO CHANCE OF TAKING TITLE FROM JOHNSON

Tom Flanagan, the Canadian trainer, who was engaged by Jack Johnson to prepare him for the big fight, is back in Toronto.

The manager left the fighter at Chicago. His work is done and Johnson may not call on him again for a long time.

"Condition?" repeated Flannagan, "say, that boy Johnson is in the best condition I ever saw a human being in. He has everything.

"I believe that Johnson is good for several years more. I don't think that he will be a loser in condition in the next four years. They don't give him credit for it, but he keeps in shape. Doesn't smoke, drinks little, doesn't chew and eats good food—you know what I mean—food that isn't harmful.

Almost Jeff's Age.

"He is almost as old as Jeffries, but look at the difference between the condition of the two men. And it was Johnson they accused of violating all laws of nature—drinking, carousing, keeping late hours and refusing to take care of himself.

"Johnson could have whipped Jeffries in three rounds. He looked bad at the start, but all of us in Johnson's corner thought that the big fellow was laying back, keeping his true form under cover and leading Johnson on.

Break in Third Round.

"When Jack hit him that wallop to the head in the third the fight turned. Johnson knew then that the battle belonged to him. He took his time after that and fought in his usual cautious style. He could have put Jeff away, though, in the third or fourth round if he had wanted to take chances.

"Jeffries knew he wasn't in shape, but he certainly looked fine outside. One afternoon Johnson asked me to go up to Jeff's camp and look him over. I did. Jeffries didn't like it. 'Tom,' he said to me, 'I wish you would go over and take a look at those other fellows.' He didn't care to be looked over at close range and he knew why. I told Johnson about it and I told him what I thought about it. Since the fight I have learned on good authority that Jeffries bet $5,000 on Johnson to win.

No Training System.

"What could you expect Jeffries to do? Look at his training staff. All he had was a lot of old fellows like himself who never could come back. Fellows who started going back before Jeffries started on his great career. None of these fellows could fight or even give him an argument in training. They might have handed him a lot of fine advice, but what is advice? You can get barrels of that, but you won't be developing while you're getting it. You can't use advice in the ring when you haven't the physical power, the speed and the punch.

"Look at Johnson. He surrounded himself with five or six of the very best men he could secure. All of them could fight and all of them gave him a grand tussle. He would box from ten to fifteen rounds every day and he was fighting more than boxing.

Picks Kid Cotton.

"Take this 'Kid' Cotton, whom Johnson had training him. Now, I'll make you a good, big wager that Cotton can whip anybody in the country except Johnson. And he had several other big husky fellows who were willing to go into the ring and rough it with him.

"There is not a man in the world today who can whip the big fellow. I predict that he will hold the title for at least five years. He'll be keeping in shape right along, taking a lesson from Jeffries. What he saw before him at Reno will mean much to Johnson's future.

RUSSELL FORD FOOLS HITTERS

The wonderful success of Russell Ford, the star pitcher of the Highlanders, is due principally to the development of a freak spit-ball curve.

The regular spit-ball is thrown by covering the tips of the first and second fingers with saliva, so that the ball will slip off those fingers and not take a rotary motion. The ball, therefore, gets its direction from the thumb and wobbles to the plate in a peculiar fashion.

The only trouble with that curve is the inability of the pitcher to make it break "in" or "out" to the batter according to the wishes of the twirler. Ford has solved that problem by inventing a way of making the curve break in.

Ford found that by moistening the knuckle of his third finger with saliva that the ball would slip off from the side instead of the tips of the fingers and as there was no fricton on the right side of the ball it would gradually drop "inside" of the plate. He controls it perfectly. He can also make the ball break outward by moistening the thumb.

BOSTON MARE WINS IN FIFTH

PROVIDENCE, July 28.—Extra heats were required in all of the three races on the card at Narragansett park, some splendid racing and close finishes being seen. There was no speculation.

The best racing of the day was seen in the 2:10 pace, won by Roxy Ann from a field of thirteen in five heats. It took some time for Roxy Ann, owned by S. B. Hastings of Boston, to get going for she finished seventh in the first heat and second in the next. She won the next three after great drives, being hard pressed by the field all the way.

In the first heat Major Strong, driven by Harry Brusie, seemed to have the race as he came down the stretch, but Brusie held him back and Charlie Muller just won out. Brusie was fined $50 and suspended until the fine was paid. He paid promptly and drove in the next heat, but Major Strong went up in the air repeatedly and never figured.

In the last heat of this race, Lula Hunt came into collision with Charlie Miller, and Driver Moulton of the latter horse was thrown just as he was turning into the stretch the second time around. The driverless horse plunged into the crowd of horses and threatened damage.

MYOPIA POLO TEAM DEFEATS NEW HAVEN

NARRAGANSETT PIER, July 28.—Polo continues the rage at Narragansett. A double-header attracted the devotees at this popular resort to the grounds at Wildfield Farm, where the Point Judith tournament is in progress.

The first event was a match in the semi-finals of the freshmen cup series between Myopia 2d and New Haven 2d. Myopia won by a score of 7½ to 4½.

A special members' match was arranged by F. A. Gill between the Perroquets and the Meadowbrook Freebooters. The two English poloists appeared on the Perroquet team, and their clever riding and accurate driving won much admiration. The Perroquets won the event by a score of 10¼ to

STRAIGHT TIPS

FOR SPORT FANS

WE'RE AFTER FIRST PLACE—AND we will land it. I'm patriotic to the limit an any home stuff, but, brushing all that aside, and doping the situation out from past performances, it certainly looks good for the Red Sox to cop first place. The local bunch is playing great ball, and even if they do thrown away a game once in a while, as they did yesterday, they are gaining on the leaders all of the time. I believe to-day, more strongly than ever before, that the pennant will be ours.

THERE IS A GOOD SHOW AT THE American A. C. to-night, and the fans should be on deck in great numbers, as the card is made up of local boys. The Hurley-King bout will furnish the members with a lot of excitement. Both boys are new comers to the game, and show promise for a good future. Hurley is under the watchful eye of Johnny Egan, and if he follows out Johnny's advice is sure to make good.

WUXTRY TO THE BIG MUTT THAT said he could put it all over me as easy as the Smoke licked Jeff. Don't try it. It may prove to be an undignified act. Observe the rules of etiquette. Challenge me to a bout before a recognized club, but don't show such bad form as to write a letter telling me that you'll knock my block off because I didn't have the mental stamina to wade through ten pages of rot, which you tried to hand me about what a fourteen-karat fighter you think you are.

Straight Tips: Your dope as to whether Wagner was better than Barry is right. Barry is far from being in Wagner's class. Both are good just now, but wait a few years and you will certainly hear of John Giger, crack shortstop of the Gardner A. C. He expects a tryout with Worcester next year. Then watch him climb to the majors and have them all beaten a mile. HARDY BELLIVEAU,
Gardner, Mass. Manager Gardner A. C.

Straight Tips—Please tell me what is the height and weight of Ty Cobb. Were New York and Boston in the American League when it first started. Who won the pennant the first year? T. F. H.

Cobb is about five feet eleven inches tall and weighs 175 pounds. Boston was not in the league the first year. Chicago won the pennant the first year.

Straight Tips—We, the undersigned, wish to ask you if the Mutt-Jeff cartoons by Mr. Fisher are going to continue. We subscribe for the BOSTON AMERICAN for them. If you are going to continue the same, will you inform us through the column? We are all West End pool players. We quit the paper if you don't come up with the goods.
LARRY CLAY, AL SARGENT, SPIKE JOHNSON, DOPE POMEROY, BUNK MARSTERS.

Open your glims. Don't get peevish if Bud is laid up and misses a single day.

Straight Tips—Did Battling Nelson ever hold the lightweight championship previous to the time he fought with Gans, and from whom did Gans get it?
Revere, Mass. H. A. M.

He got the title by beating Gans, who held it by winning from Frank Erne.

Straight Tips—Was Peter Maher champion of England at the time of his defeat by Bob Fitzsimmons? Did Charley Mitchell ever hold the championship of England? Why wasn't Jim Corbett champion of the world? He met all comers, didn't he, including Peter Jackson?
Portsmouth. C. C. LANE.

Peter was champion of Ireland. Mitchell was recognized champion of England. Corbett was never world's champion. He failed to beat Peter Jackson.

Straight Tips: Will you please tell me to settle a bet if Arthur Duffety is a sporting writer for one of the Boston papers?
Olneyville, R. I. H. KUND.

Yes.

BOXING NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Pal Moore, the clever Philadelphia bantam, writes from Asbury Park that he is enjoying his vacation to the queen's taste.

George Little, president of the Amalgamated Order of Former Managers of Jack Johnson, is certainly making things unpleasant for John Arthur.

* * *

"Tex" Rickard says that Jack Johnson can defeat two men in the same ring, and adds that he will make a bet that John Arthur delivers the goods. There is some talk of the promoter arranging another battle, but "Tex" denies the rumor. He recently visited Jeff at his home, and the talk started.

Joe Choynski, one of the "old school" trainers of James J., says that Jeff's brain gave out. Joe says the big fellow refused to listen to his trainers.

They were making arrangements for holding a Nelson-Wolgast bout in Louisiana, but the Sheriff butted in, and the bout has been put under the table.

Abe Attell will meet Pete McVeigh of Seattle, on July 26. The bout was arranged last night. It is said that the bout may be to a finish. Governor Hay does not like boxing, and may interfere if the bout is to be a finish affair.

Jimmy Coffroth comes to the front with a statement that he may resume boxing in 'Frisco with a bout between Stanley Ketchell and Frank Klaus.

Charley Harvey, a New York manager, says Jeff was a big lumbering joke, and it was a case of back number. That's right, rub it in. But what did Harvey ever do that gives him the privilege of knocking James J.?

* * *

Dan McKetrick is sore over the fact that Ketchel beat him to Bill Lang. Dan thinks that if Lang were given a tryout by boxing Jim Stewart first the fans would be better pleased. It wouldn't be a bad idea, but Bill comes to us with a better record than some of the lemons we have seen around here.

* * *

Leach Cross had better be at his best when he meets Jack Dorman, for Jack has shown up well in his last few fights. He made Jack Goodman extend himself when they fought a few months ago, and it was Dorman who was there forcing the go at the end.

There will be a dearth of good material in the boxing line around New York this Fall if the Paris clubs keep signing up American fighters. Both Lewis boys, Harry and Willie, Mike and Jack Sullivan, Jimmy Clabby, Frank Klaus, Billy Papke and a few others have already been asked to go abroad and have accepted.

TOUCHARD EASY FOR TENNIS CHAMPION

NEW YORK, July 28.—The national lawn tennis champion, William A. Larned, gave an exhibition of his best form when he defeated Gustave V. Touchard, the indoor champion, for the metropolitan championship, in straight sets, 6—0, 6—1, 6—1.

Larned's judgment of distance was faultless, his volleys dazzling, and his drives accurate to the line.

The match had been postponed from June 25, when Larned strained a tendon. It was played on the courts of the West Side Tenis Club.

GOLF GOSSIP CLUB NOTES

Massachusetts has had little to offer in the way of golf this week, and the amateurs of the state are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to the open handicap tournament at the Hatherly Golf club, next Saturday. This tournament is of practically the same nature as the meeting held at the Crow Point Golf club, last Saturday in which a field of 115 competed. The principal cause of the overwhelming fields of players that go to these two tournaments is the fact that such a pleasant day of golf, and at the seashore, may be had. Luncheon is served the guests, and they are taken to and from the station in automobiles.

The Hatherly course is only one of Summer duration, and naturally does not offer a wonderful course for competition, but many players take comfort in the fact that there are no big bowlders, nor rocks hidden under a smattering of sand to add distance (usually backward), to their shots. The seashore is not five minutes walk from the club house and there are always some who go down in the morning and take a dip in the briny in the afternoon.

To-day in the mountains is a great day for golf, for the Maplewood Country club, of Maplewood, N. H., starts its opening play in the famous three day tournament that is held there annually. Many Boston players especially those who class themselves as the "Rovers" attend this event each year, and the fun that is gotten out of the course and surroundings, is not a little bit. The qualifying round is held at 18 holes this morning, and match play in divisions of sixteen, starts this afternoon, only the final round of each division being at 36 holes, on Saturday.

HELEN WINNER IN MARION SONDER RACE

NEW BEDFORD, July 28.—The fourth Corinthian race of the Sippican Yacht Club was sailed at Marion. In the sonderklasse race the Helen and Peg had a close race. Dwight F. Davis had the tiller of the Helen and although the Peg led to Angelica Point, he put the Helen to the front and kept her there to the finish. Some of the boats were obliged to reef in the southwest breeze that was blowing.

NATIONAL GOLF CHAMP BEATEN

MINNEAPOLIS, July 29.—Robert A. Gardner of Hinsdale, the national champion, was put out of the Western golf championship tournament at the Minikahda Club, but Charles Evans, Jr., of Edgewater is still successfully defending his title as Western champion.

Gardner was put out in the second round by Warren K. Wood of Homewood, after a hot contest which ended on the last green with the champion one down. Evans remains in the tournament by virtue of his decisive defeat of Kenneth P. Edwards of Midlothian by six up and five to play.

The surprise of the day was the defeat of Paul Hunter of Midlothian by C. T. Jaffray, a veteran of the Minikahda Club, by one up.

Albert Seckel of Hinsdale, the Eastern intercollegiate champion, defeated W. H. Diddell of Indianapolis, four up and two to play, while R. E. Hunter of Midlothian had little trouble in disposing of L. W. Kinnear of Detroit by four up and three to play.

GIRL SKIPPERS TO RACE BOATS

BUZZARDS BAY, July 27.—Great interest is being taken in the races and water spots to be held by the Beverly Yacht Club at its club house across the bay at Wing's Neck next Saturday. There will be a large representation of Summer folk from the various shore colonies from Onset through to Falmouth.

The club regatta will be the principal event, and the interest that was created in the fifteen-foot class by the close and fast racing last Saturday afternoon is being revived. Among the "skippers" in this clas are Miss Margaret Codman and Miss Hilda Williams, who have proven that they can sail a craft as well as any of the men in the races. Last Saturday Miss Codman did especially well. The entries to the water sports are coming in good, and an interesting contest is expected.

IS OUT OF GAME.

CINCINNATI, O., July 28.—Arthur Fromme, a pitcher on the Cincinnati team, has been given leave of absence for the rest of the season. Fromme will devote the rest of the Summer to treatment for rheumatism of his pitching arm.

AMERICAN A. C. BOUTS TO-NIGHT

The American Athletic Club holds its regular weekly meeting to-night. The show is made up from the best of the local talent, and some good sport should result.

Young Merringo of the North End, who meets Chester Walcott in the final bout, is one of the most promising lads that has been developed around here in some time. He boxed Walcott in Brockton a few months ago, when he was just coming out, and the best the brother of the "Barbadoes Demon" could get was a draw.

The semi-final is between Young Jasper and Joe White, and it ought to be a rattling go. Jasper and White are about as good as the best of the newcomers among local featherweights.

Tomy Flanagan of Cambridge is on the bill against Felix McGuire of East Boston. Kid Crowley of Hyde Park will clash with Young Green of Lowell, and Dan Hurley of Charlestown will mix it with Young King of the North End. The last pair will box four rounds, and the others, with the exception of Merringo and Walcott, are down for six rounds.

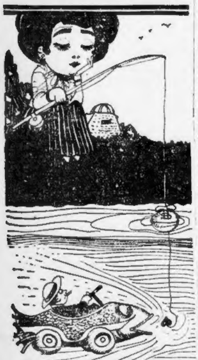
A Job as Woman's First Aid to Matrimony

By DOROTHY DIX

A DELAWARE printing office, finding that its girl employes were married by the young men of the town almost as soon as they were hired, has issued the following statement:

"Without intent, this office has developed a continuous performance in providing wedding ceremonies. A few years ago several young ladies were taken into the composing room, and their services have been very satisfactory. In fact, their steady effort has attracted attention from sensible young men who were looking for helpmates in women capable of making happy homes for good men.

"We are not sure but what it would be well to give the old maids a chance by teaching them the trade of typesetting, but the young, healthy girls are a pleasure to look upon as well as to have upon the pay rolls, and there is a chance for a quick, intelligent girl not only to learn a trade, but almost a certainty of getting an industrious husband by holding down a job in this office. Come, girls, we will do our part, and the future is up to you."



"The society girl prays for a lone sucker to swim her way."

This matrimonial boom in the Delaware printing establishment is particularly significant just now, when the matrimonial market has slumped down to rock bottom, for it shows very conclusively three things.

Three Things It Shows

THE FIRST is that men, who want good, sensible wives, are beginning to look for them in business offices, and not at pink teas.

THE SECOND is that the working girl has more chances to get married than has her society sister.

THE THIRD is that the working girl, literally, has a better opportunity to marry a real worth-while man—the sort of a man that will amount to something twenty years hence—than has the rich girl.

These little matrimonial advantages are the recompense that fate, which isn't a stepmother after all, offers to the little Cinderellas who stand behind counters, and pound typewriters, and bend over columns of figures in ledgers, while their pampered half-sisters sit on a silk cushion and feed upon strawberries, sugar and cream. And having the advantage in the matter of wedding bells sort of evens things up, doesn't it?

And, when you come to think of it, the situation is perfectly logical. There is every reason why any sensible, level-headed man, who wants a wife who will be a help to him instead of a hindrance, should pick out a working girl instead of a society butterfly. To begin with, the mere fact that she is working and able to hold down a good job is a certificate of character in itself for a woman.

It shows that she has principle and honor, that she has intelligence and independence and strength, and will be a staff upon which her husband can lean in the day of adversity—not a millstone about his neck that will pull him down.

Then, there is no other such training for matrimony as a girl gets in a business office. It teaches her self-control—how to keep her temper and hold her tongue under provocation. She learns the value of money from having painfully earned it herself, and what stress and strain a man works under, so that she can make a thousand excuses for him when he comes home with frazzled nerves, or urges economy, that the purely domestic woman, who doesn't know anything about money except spending it, never can.

She's the Real Gilt-Edged Risk

For all of these reasons, men are beginning to see that the real gilt-edged, preferred risk in matrimony is the business woman.

The business girl has a better chance to marry than the society girl, for the very simple reason that she casts in her line where the fish are plenty, instead of having to sit on the bank, as the society girl does, and pray for a lone sucker to swim her way.

Propinquity is the great match-maker. Let any girl of even ordinary attractions, be thrown day after day in the society of a man; give them the bond of a common interest and the comradeship of doing the same sort of work together; let the latent chivalry in his soul be called out by his being a little sorry for her for having to earn her bread, and fill him with a general admiration and respect for the cheery, brave way in which she faces life, and any girl that can't land a wedding ring out of the situation is such a chump that she deserves to have "spinster" carved on her tombstone.

The girl who sees a man every day and a dozen times a day has every advantage over the one who only sees him when he feels in the mood of putting on his best clothes and going around and making a formal call.

Where Miss Society Loses Out

Also, the girl who knows the things that he knows, who is absorbed in the same schemes and ambitions, and can talk shop to him, is of more real heart interest to him than the most brilliant outside woman can be; and that is where the working girl gets in her work and Miss Society loses out.

The business girl has not only a better chance to marry than the society girl, but her chances of making a really desirable match are better than the society girl's. In reality, no woman in the world has so little opportunity of marrying well as rich American girls, because our men are not fortune hunters, and, as a general thing, they are as shy of an heiress as they would be if she were a leper.

The poor rich girl, who spends her time between Newport, Bar Harbor and Palm Beach and to whom the world outside of Fifth avenue is an undiscovered territory, never has a chance to marry anything but a sap-headed dude or a gilded youth, whose only achievement consists in being able to break the speed limit with his automobile oftener than anybody else, who has a record for throwing his father's money at the birds, who knows half of the chorus girls, and whose sole matrimonial recommendation is that he will be good for big alimony.

The men who are worth marrying, the men who are going to be the big financiers and manufacturers and iron and steel kings, the great editors and political powers of twenty years hence, are not in society wasting their time dangling around at parties and polo meets. They have their coats off and their shoulders humped, toiling away for all they are worth in office, or store, or factory; and the society girl has no way of meeting them or getting at them.

She's Sally-on-the-Spot

But the business girl is Sally-on-the-spot, and that is why she gets them.

And she deserves her good fortune, and here's wishing her luck.

DAY'S BEST STORY

E. HOPKINSON SMITH, an enthusiastic sportsman—when he is sitting on the side-lines or the bleachers. Not long since, at the conclusion of a reading from his own works, one of the young women who was presented to him sought to inquire into his passion for sport.

"Mr. Smith," she asked, "what is your favorite game?"

"That," replied the novelist, "depends upon the season."

"Of course," assented the young woman, "but though you may like football in the Autumn and baseball in the Summer, you must have some general preference. Isn't there one game that you like best?"

"Well, yes," replied Mr. Smith reflectively, "I think that, all things considered, my favorite game is canvas-back, just a trifle high."

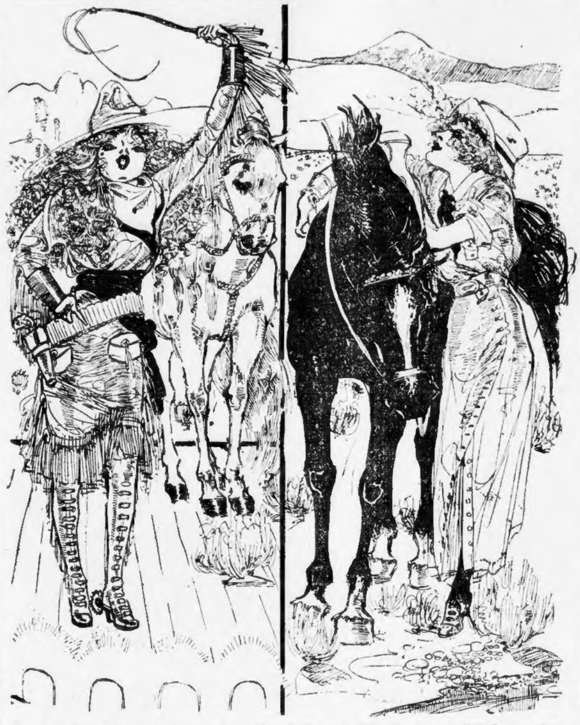
The "Girl of the Golden West"

ON THE STAGE AND IN REAL LIFE—BY NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner



The stage Cow-Girl is a creature in all the fringe of the old West.

The real thing has a tough little horse and a sensible, divided skirt.

TAKE a peek at 'em—the real thing and the fake article. The cowgirl—also a vanishing type—as well as that husky, snake-bodied man with the fur on his trousers and the well-defined sense of right and wrong, with the bowed legs and The lithe, flat footed, Indian-like walk—the cowboy.

The stage cowgirl is a creature in all the fringe of the old West and all the complexion dope of the old East. She's done up in chamois skin and brown velvet, high-laced velvet boots, serape, cartridge belt, six-shooter and all—and her horse, which you never catch her riding, though you gaze with all your five senses, is a regular, proper war horse, a Sir Launcelot dray horse—a satin-coated, sapolio-scoured, Spotless Town Arabian steed.

The real thing has a tough little mongrel horse, a divided skirt to her ankles; she lives in the suburbs of a big town—has her piano, her books, isn't any more liable to wear her hair down her back than you are, has her little stock of evening frocks, and, whisper, two Summers ago when I went home to the hills I found her in the snug little mountain town with a Moyen Age frock on when it was still nothing in New York but pictures from Paris. Aha!

Letters from a Summer Girl

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Letter No. 3—Telling of Her First Dinner Party.

MUMSIE, DEAR—Well, I've been to my first dinner party and had a lovely time. I wore my white tulle dress and white satin shoes and grandmother's pearls, and Mrs. Lawrence brought me an enormous bunch of white sweetpeas, just as we were starting.

And now I must tell you the most amazing thing. The bride and groom were there and, Mumsie, they are not bride and groom at all, they are not even married. His name is Robert Caton and hers is Mrs. Bently.

He is staying at our hotel and she is visiting some people on the shore road; her husband is abroad.

She looked lovely last night in pink satin and heaps of diamonds.

I don't quite understand it, Mumsie. Every one seems to take it for granted that they should be together all the time, and yet she is married. I know one thing, and that is that I hate, detest and abhor Mr. Caton. He came up to me, before we went in to dinner, and said with that horrid twinkle in his eyes, "Good evening, grown-up lady." It almost sounded as though he said "grown-up baby," but of course, he would not dare be so impertinent.

I Bowed Very Stiffly

I bowed very stiffly and held my bouquet with both hands, so as not to have to shake hands. Then, to my horror, I found he was to take me out to dinner. I just put the tips of my fingers on his arm and did not speak once on the way out. When we sat down I found, to my joy, that the man on my other side was Mr. Sinclair, that nice, romantic man I met at the Casino. He has a way of talking in a low voice so that no one but the person to whom he is talking knows what he is saying. He said I looked like a snow maiden, and lots more rather foolish but awfully flattering things. I was half frightened, but, Mumsie, dear, I think I liked it all.

And, oh, Mumsie, dear, I want to ask you something. He raised his glass of champagne and quoted a verse of poetry, and asked me to drink with him to happy days to come. I did not know quite what to do, but I was afraid of appearing silly so I drank some champagne that had been poured into my glass before I had a chance to stop the butler from pouring it.

I rather liked the taste of it, so I finished it and it made me feel queer and excited and I laughed and talked with Mr. Sinclair, and he asked me if I would walk on the terrace after dinner and would I motor with him to-morrow afternoon.

Once Mr. Caton tried to say something to me, but I think I was rather rude to him, for he flushed scarlet and turned away.

A Rebuke from Mr. Sinclair

But once I saw him look at Mr. Sinclair with such a contemptuous sort of look, and I hated him for it, and then he said very low, so that only I could hear it: "Little grown up lady, you are growing up very fast." I simply turned my shoulder toward him and did not answer.

Why should he dare criticize Mr. Sinclair when he himself flirts with married women? He spent the entire evening after dinner with Mrs. Bently in the Italian garden. I could see them walking up and down.

He left the dining room ahead of the other men. I was on the terrace and I saw him slip out of the library window and join Mrs. Bently. I met several men and they were all just awfully nice to me. One nice boy, called Billy Gale, has asked me to swim to-morrow morning. I'm going to have a heavenly Summer, Mumsie, even if there are one or two people here that I don't like.

I asked Mrs. Lawrence about Mr. Sinclair after we got home to-night. I can see that she does not like him very much, but she is prejudiced because he is divorced.

She does not know how his wife misunderstood him and how he craves for sympathy. I do, because he told me all about it when we were on the terrace to-night. Mrs. Lawrence was playing bridge; she did not know I was on the terrace. I have not asked her yet if I would motor with him to-morrow afternoon, but as we are to motor out to Green Pond to a picnic and every one is going I don't think she'll mind. Good-night, darling, I'm just dropping with sleep. I'll write to-morrow night and tell you all about the picnic. Give my dearest love to Dad.

Your loving daughter,

PEGGY MAITLAND.

P. S.—I asked Davis when she was undressing me which color she liked best in a man's eye, and she thought a minute and then said: "Well, Miss Peggy, I think I like gray eyes best, the kind that twinkle." I gave her a little shake and said, quite crossly: "No, Davis, you do not, you know eyes like that are just horrid." "Perhaps so, Miss," she answered meekly. Do you like gray eyes, Mumsie?

HER LANGUAGE

SHE possessed a mind discerning,
That was stored and crammed with learning,
And her thoughts, forever burning,
She could suitably express.
All her sentences were rounded,
And her words imposing sounded;
I was really quite astounded
As I listened, I confess.

It was rather an infliction,
All this verbal unrestriction,
But her elegance of diction,
Each precise and polished phrase,
And the beautiful selection
Of the words and their connection,
And her most correct inflection—
They were quite beyond all praise.

Yet I saw her very lately,
And she did not talk ornately;
All that language, suave and stately
She no longer kept on tap.
She was saying, "Because, diddums!
Where de bad old pin get hiddums,
In his muzzer's p'ecious kiddums?"
To the baby in her lap.

How Sam Lived Up to His Contrariness

By KENNETT HARRIS

"IT'S all right a-tryin' to please folks," remarked Washington Hancock. "I aim to please myself, but I draw the line somewheres."

"If you'd draw it this side o' the cheese box, I'd like it," suggested the storekeeper. "Samplin's all right, too, but it hadn't ought to be run beyond ha'f a pound or so, and the same principle applies to prunes."

"There was a feller name o' Tyson Baird lived neighbor to us that was two years buildin' a thirty-five by twenty barn," Hancock went on, calmly brushing the cheese crumbs from his trousers. "My ol' pappey tol' him that he ought to make the roof half pitch to give the rain a good chance to run off, an' another feller allowed a third pitch was a-plenty, an' looked a heap better, an' while he was cuttin' his rafters for the third pitch, a fruit-tree peddler advised him to make it a lean-to, so's he could build an addition when he wanted to on the other side.

"Then a passle o' folks kep' him wabblin' around between board-an'-batten an' drap-sidin' an' ship-lap, an' a passle more had their ideas about the kine an' color of paint that he'd ought to put on, an' by the time he'd got through with them that was takin' a friendly intrust in the hayloft an' the cow stanchions, the foundations was rotted so bad he had to begin over again."

He Makes a Purchase

"By the time you git through samplin' cheese an' make up your mind that you want to buy some, there won't be none left," said the storekeeper.

"I reckon I'll take a nickel's wuth," said Hancock, tossing the coin on the counter. "'Taint extry good, but I don't want to walk all the way to Crane's this hot day. Don't stent me on the weight.

"Baird died tryin' to please three doctors by takin' the three kines of medcines they gave him for three different complaints all at one time," continued Hancock, hoisting himself around to address the store circle. "He sure was a right clever boy, Tyson was. He wasn't much like Sam Todd."

"How was Sam?" asked Eben Baxter.

"Sam was sandy complected an' walked with a limp," replied Hancock. "Tyson wore a long black moustache an' had two large warts on his nose," he added. "You c'd most always tell 'em apart as far as you could see 'em—Sam an' Tyson, not the warts.

"There was other p'ints o' diffrunce," resumed Hancock, a little later. "Sam was the bull headedest, sottest, contrariest cuss you ever ran acrost. If you wanted him to do one thing, he'd turn right around an' do jest the ap'sit. There wasn't nobuddy c'd handle him but his Aunt Emmeline, an' she lived over in the nex' township an' didn't get to see him right often, so he had his own way for the most part, an' his way was his way an' not nobuddy else's.

"I remember, one time I passed along by his place an' seen him sewing buckwheat. 'Howdy, Sam,' I says, 'you're doin' the right thing for once,' says I. 'I've been a-wonderin' why you keep right on puttin' that patch to rye year after year,' I says.

He Changed His Mind

"'I'll tell you why,' says Sam. 'It's because rye's the right thing to put in, an' I'm goin' to keep right on puttin' it to rye. I reckon I'm the best judge of what's best to raise on my own land.'

"'I notice you're sowin' buckwheat jest the same,' I says.

"'That's no sign I ain't goin' to quit sowin' it right now,' he says, beginnin' to tie up his sack. 'The rest of it is a-goin' to be sowed to rye, an' don't you fergit it,' an' with that he h'ists the sack on his shoulder, an' walks off with it, an' an hour later he was joggin' along, with his jaw set, shootin' out rye like a force pump. That's the way Sam used to be. He's jest as bad now, only nobuddy'd ever notice it on him except when his wife's a-visitin' her folks."

"I'm a right smart that-a-way myself," said Sol Baker.

"The most of us is," said Hancock, "but we don't have any choice an' Sam did. When Sam got to lookin' around among the gals, he had hard work to make up his mind, bein' as he was a husky, fine-appearin' boy an' tol'able well fixed, an' havin' plenty of willin' ones to pick from.

"Finerly it got narrered right down to two of 'em, Lena Shabler an' Pearl Richardson. Lena was a stout, red-cheeked, good-lookin' girl with snapping black eyes an' a ready tongue, with the name of bein' an ambitious worker; Pearl was sorter delikit an' meek an' scary, kinder pretty, too, but no sort of git-up an' hustle. It went on, neck-and-neck, betwixt them two until finerly Sam's Aunt Emmeline took a hand in the game.

"'I'm for Pearl,' says Aunt Emmeline. 'If Sam marries Lena, she'll give him about as good as he gives her, an' there's goin' to be hell er poppin' from the jump-off. Same time, I've got to see that he treats pore little Pearl right.'

She Boosts for Lena

"So she organ by takin' Sam off to one side an' boostin' Lena's stock. 'She's jest the kine of a wife you want, Sammy,' she says. 'She's a good cook an' a neat housekeeper an' she ain't a-goin' to cost nothin' in doctor's bill. You take that washed-out, die-away, shivery, finicky Pearl Richardson an'——'

"'You hold your horses right there, Aunt Emmeline,' says Sam. 'I'm a-goin' to marry to suit myself an' accordin' to my idees. Lena may suit you, but you won't never have to live with her,' he says, 'an' while Pearl may not suit you, she suits me an' I'm a-goin' to marry her.'

"Aunt Emmeline fetches a sigh. 'Well,

Aunt Emmeline made him take the one she really preferred.

I won't argy with you, Sammy,' she says. 'I know best, but if you think you do, go right ahead. But there's one thing I want to say to you if it was ever so,' says she, 'an' that is, keep a tight line on Miss Pearl. Men don't know wimmen the way wimmen does,' she says, 'an' I tell you that you've got to keep Pearl right under your thumb if you want to get on with her, as meek an' mild as she looks to be. You let her have her own way once or let her tell you what you ought to do an' you'll be a-goin' round on tiptoe inside of a year. You mark my words now."

She Gets Her Own Way

"'I'll mark 'em,' says Sam, 'an' I'll tell you right now that you don't know no more about Pearl than I do about the Cannibal Islands. Pearl's the kind that needs gentlin' an' encouragin',' he says, 'an' she's a-goin' to have her own way all I can give it to her, right along. What's more, if she wants to boss me, she's welcome, but you ain't. I reckon she's got more sense than I have an' what she says is a-going to be the law an' the gospel an' if you don't like it you know what you kin do about it, meanin' no disrespect.'

"'Don't say I didn't warn you,' says Aunt Emmeline.

"'I won't,' says Sam, an' a week later him an' Pearl was married an' now he's the obedientest, indulgentest husband that there is anywhere around that section, an' all because of his sot disposition."

"Well, I don't see nothin' out of the way in that," commented the storekeeper. "If they don't throw you with one holt, they'll take another an' tumble you endwise ever' time."

SOCIETY GOES DOWN TO THE SEA IN SHIPS

That element of society not finding sufficient amusement at home is still on the wing, and every outgoing steamer, as well as every incoming one, bears its hosts of fashionables in search of diversion. Among those arriving on the Ivernia to-day are Professor N. L. Andrews and Mrs. Andrews, H. Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge with their daughters, Miss Delphn Coolidge and Miss Elizabeth G. Coolidge, the Misses Ida and Ella Hammond, Ernest W. Longfellow, Mrs. Walace L. Pierce, Miss Virginia Pierce and Miss Barbara Pierce of Beacon street, Mrs. G. C. Shaw and C. G. Shaw, Jr., F. N. Stackpole and Mrs. Stackpole, Paul Thorndike, Mrs. Thorndike and the Misses Mary and Alice Thorndike, and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wheelwright.

◆ ◆ ◆

That interesting young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Jr. (Barbara Higginson), are just returning from their honeymoon trip to Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Wendell, who will make their landing either at Quebec or Montreal, went abroad directly after their marriage, which took place in June at the home of Mrs. Wendell's father, Francis L. Higginson, at Pride's Crossing.

◆ ◆ ◆

The Rev. and Mrs. Paul Revere Frothingham are on the ocean, bound for Europe, where they will remain for a year. The Rev. and Mrs. Daniel D. Addison of Brookline, are also on their way to Europe.

◆ ◆ ◆

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schelling have arrived in America from their home in Switzerland, for a visit to Mrs. Schelling's old Summer home at Bar Harbor. Mrs. Schelling was Lucie Draper and a niece of the late Charles T. How, whose death occurred at the Schelling home last October. It was also at the Schelling villa that Samuel Bates, Mrs. Schelling's cousin and one of our foremost clubmen, was married to Mrs. Cramer last January.

◆ ◆ ◆

Charles J. Paine and his son and daughter, who sailed a few weeks ago for Europe, have recently been registered at Versailles.

◆ ◆ ◆

The Hugh W. Ogdens of Brookline, are sailing this week for their annual trip abroad.

◆ ◆ ◆

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Bradlee have returned from Europe. Mrs. Bradlee went abroad with her mother, Mrs. Seeger, early in the Spring after her Winter in Bermuda, as she did last year, and Mr. Bradlee sailed later and joined her. They are now at their pretty cottage at Nahant for the rest of the Summer.

◆ ◆ ◆

Another family just returned from abroad is that of Richard F. Bolles. They sailed during Lent and are now at their Summer villa on Jerusalem road, Cohasset. Miss Barbara Bolles was one of the most interesting of last Winter's debutantes.

◆ ◆ ◆

About sailing on the other side are the Hon. Robert Bacon, American Ambassador to France; Mrs. Bacon and Miss Martha Bacon, who are returning to Paris after their short visit in America, which was made for the special purpose of attending the wedding of the oldest son of the house, Gaspar Bacon, and Miss Toland, at which Miss Martha Bacon was one of the bridesmaids.

◆ ◆ ◆

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Lawrence of Commonwealth avenue are spending the Summer in Europe instead of at their cottage at Marblehead.

◆ ◆ ◆

Mr and Mrs. Alanson L. Daniel of Fairfield street, who are in Europe, are planning to return in time to spend the Fall at the farm which they recently bought at Topsfield. Until their departure a few weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. Daniels were at their pretty cottage at Beverly Farms.

◆ ◆ ◆

Houston A. Thomas, who is occupying "The Locusts" on Maine street, Hamilton, will go abroad shortly to join Mrs. Thomas and Miss Thomas, who are now in Switzerland. Mrs. Thomas, who is a Parisian by birth, frequently goes abroad to visit her home in France.

◆ ◆ ◆

Mrs. W. Scott Fitz is opening her Summer home on Smith's Point, Manchester, today for the first of two descriptive talks on "Chantecler," in French, by Charles Le Deue. The second talk will be given on August 4.

Defy Hot Weather

For those who suffer from heat, exhaustion, insomnia, poor stomachs or weak bowels, life during hot weather is made worth living by using a little genuine

CHAPTER XXI. (Continued.)

INSPECTOR JACKS took up his hat and followed his acquaintance to the private room of the Home Secretary. That personage nodded to him upon his entrance and continued to dictate a letter. When he had finished, he sent his clerk out of the room and, motioning Mr. Jacks to take a seat by his side, leaned back in his own chair with the air of one prepared to relax for a moment. He was a man of somewhat insignificant presence, but he had keen gray eyes, half the time concealed under thick eyebrows, and flashing out upon you now and then at least expected moments.

"From Scotland Yard, I understand, Mr. Jacks?" he remarked.

"At your service, sir," the Inspector answered. "I am in charge of the investigations concerning these two recent murders."

"Quite so," the Home Secretary remarked. "I am very glad to meet you, Mr. Jacks. So far, I suppose, you are willing to admit that you gentlemen down at Scotland Yard have not exactly distinguished yourselves."

"We are willing to admit that," Inspector Jacks said.

"I do not know whether the reward will help you very much," the Home Secretary continued. "So far as you people personally are concerned, I imagine that it will make no difference. The only point seems to be that it may bring you outside help which at the present time is being withheld."

"The offering of the reward, sir," Inspector Jacks said, "can do no harm, and it may possibly assist us very materially."

"I am glad to have your opinion, Mr. Jacks," the Home Secretary said.

There was a moment's pause. The Minister trifled with some papers lying on the desk before him. Then he turned to his visitor and continued:

"You will forgive my reminding you, Mr. Jacks, that I am a busy man and that this is a busy morning. You had some reason, I presume, for wishing to see me?"

"I had, sir," the Inspector answered. "I took the liberty of waiting upon you, sir, to ask whether the idea of a reward for so large a sum came spontaneously from your department?"

The Home Secretary raised his eyebrows.

"Really, Mr. Jacks," he began——

"I hope, sir," the Inspector protested, "that you will not think I am asking this question through any irrelevant curiosity. I am beginning to form a theory of my own as to these two murders, but it needs building up. The offering of a reward like this, if it emanates from the source which I suspect that it does, gives a solid foundation to my theories. I am here, sir, in the interests of justice only, and I should be exceedingly obliged to you if you would tell me whether the suggestion of this large reward did not come from the Foreign Office?"

The Minister considered for several moments, and then slowly inclined his head.

"Mr. Jacks," he said, "your question appears to me to be a pertinent one. I see not the slightest reason to conceal from you the fact that your surmise is perfectly accurate."

A flash of satisfaction illuminated for a moment the detective's inexpressive features. He rose and took up his hat.

"I am very much obliged to you, sir," he said. "The information which you have given me is extremely valuable."

"I am glad to hear you say so," the Home Secretary declared. "You understand, of course, that it is within the province of my department to assist at all times and in any possible way the course of justice. Is there anything more I can do for you?"

Inspector Jacks hesitated.

"If you would not think it a liberty, sir," he said, "I should be very glad indeed if you would give me a note which would insure me an interview with Sir Edward Bransome."

"I will give it you with pleasure," the Secretary answered, "although I imagine that he would be quite willing to see you on your request."

He wrote a few lines and passed them over. Inspector Jacks saluted, and turned towards the door.

"You'll let me know if anything turns up?" the Home Secretary said.

"You shall be informed at once, sir," the Inspector assured him, as he left the room. Sir Edward Bransome was just leaving his house when Inspector Jacks entered the gate. The latter, who knew him by sight, saluted and hesitated for a moment.

"Did you wish to speak to me?" Sir Edward asked, drawing back from the step of his electric brougham.

The Inspector held out his leter. Sir Edward tore it open and glanced through the few lines which it contained. Then he looked keenly for a moment at the man who stood respectfully by his side.

"So you are Inspector Jacks from Scotland Yard," he remarked.

"At your service, sir," the detective answered.

"You can get in with me, if you like," Sir Edward continued, motioning toward the interior of his brougham. "I am due in Downing street now, but I dare say you could say what you wish to on the way there."

"Certainly, sir," Inspector Jacks answered. "It will be very good of you indeed if you can spare me those few minutes."

The brougham glided away.

"Now, Mr. Jacks," Sir Edward said, "what can I do for you? If you want to arrest me, I shall claim privilege."

The inspector smiled.

"I am in charge, sir," he said, "of the investigations concerning the murder of Mr. Hamilton Fynes and Mr. Richard Vanderpole. The news of the reward came to us at Scotland Yard this morning. Its unusual amount led me to make some inquiries at the Home Office. I found that what I partly expected was true. I found, sir, that your department has shown some interest in the apprehension of these two men."

Sir Edward inclined his head slowly.

"Well?" he said.

"Sir Edward Bransome," the Inspector continued, "I have a theory of my own as to these murders, and though it may take me some time to work it out, I feel myself day by day growing nearer the truth. These were not ordinary crimes. Any one can see that. They were not even crimes for the purpose of robbery—not, that is to say, for robbery in the ordinary sense of the word. That is apparent even to those who write for the press. It has been apparent to us from the first. It is beginning to dawn upon me now what the nature of the motive must be which was responsible for them. I have in my possession a slight, a very slight clew. The beginning of it is there, and the end. It is the way between which is tangled."

Sir Edward lit a cigarette and leaned back amongst the cushions. With a little gesture he indicated his desire that Inspector Jacks should proceed.

"My object in seeking for a personal interview with you, sir," Inspector Jacks continued, "is to ask you a somewhat peculiar question. If I find that my investigations lead me in the direction which at present seems probable, it is no ordinary person whom I shall have to arrest when the time comes. The reward which has been offered is a large one, and it is not for me to question the bonafide nature of it. I would presume, sir, even to ask you whether it was offered by reason of any outside pressure, but there is one question which I must ask. Do you really wish, sir, that the murderer or murderers of these two men shall be brought to justice?"

Sir Edward looked at his companion in steadfast amazement.

"My dear Inspector," he said, "what is this that you have in your mind? I hold no brief for any man capable of such crimes as these. Representations have been made to us by the American Government that the murder of two of her citizens within the course of twenty-four hours, and the absence of any arrest, is somewhat of a reflection upon our police service. It is for your assistance, and in compliment to our friends across the Atlantic, that the reward was offered."

Inspector Jacks seemed a little at a loss.

"It is your wish, then, sir," he said slowly, "that the guilty person or persons be arrested without warning, whoever they may be?"

"By all means," Sir Edward affirmed. "I cannot conceive, Inspector, what you have in your mind which could have led you for a moment to suspect the contrary."

The brougham had come to a standstill in front of a house in Downing street. Inspector Jacks descended slowly. It was hard for him to decide on the spot how far to take into his confidence a person whose attitude was so unsympathetic.

"I am exceedingly obliged to you for your answer to my question, sir," he said, saluting. "I hope that in a few days we shall have some news for you."

Sir Edward watched him disappear as he mounted the steps of the Prime Minister's house.

"I wonder," he said to himself thoughtfully, "what that fellow can have in his mind!"

Inspector Jacks did not at once return to Scotland Yard. On his way there he turned into St. James' Square, and stood for several moments looking at the corner house on the far side. Finally, after a hesitation which seldom characterized his movements, he crossed the road and rang the bell. The door was opened almost at once by a Japanese butler.

"Is your master at home?" the Inspector asked.

"His Highness does not see strangers," the man replied coldly.

"Will you take him my card?" the Inspector asked.

The man bowed, and showed him into an apartment on the ground floor. Then with the card in his hand, he turned reluctantly away.

"His Highness shall be informed that you are here," he said. "I fear, however, that you waste your time. I go to see."

Inspector Jacks subsided into a bamboo chair and looked out of the window with a frown upon his forehead. It was certain that he was not proceeding with altogether his usual caution. As a matter of tactics, this visit of his might very well be fatal!

COTTON TRADE LEADERS DENY TARIFF DEAL

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 28.—Henry F. Lippitt and James R. MacColl, two of the most powerful men in the cotton manufacturing industry to-day, replied to the attack contained in an article published in the current issue of World's Work. The article set forth that these men, acting for the Arkwright Club of Boston, whose members are said to control practically the cotton yarn and cloth industries of the United States, put through a "deal" with the aid of Senator Aldrich, by which, under the new tariff law, the cost of cotton goods to the consumer is enormously increased.

In their reply Messrs. Lippitt and MacColl say:

"A few importers in New York are carrying on a persistent attack on the cotton schedule of the Payne-Aldrich bill through magazines and newspapers, claiming that it has increased the price of all the cotton goods used in this country to the consumer. Their ultimate purpose is, of course, to bring about a revision which will enable them to import more goods and increase their profits.

"In the current number of World's Work there is an article on the cotton tariff which is of a similar character. It claims that the price of cotton cloth consumed in this country has been advanced because of the tariff. The author might as well write an article to prove that the stock market has advanced during the last year on account of the tariff law.

"Every intelligent man knows that the stock market has distinctly declined, and also that cotton goods are cheaper to-day than they were a year ago. It may be safely stated that most classes of cotton goods are now selling by manufacturers at lower prices than they were previous to the passage of the tariff, and it would be impossible to find any fabric that is not selling cheaper, making proper allowance for the difference in the cost of the raw material. A crop of 10,500,000 bales in 1909, against 13,500,000 bales in 1908, has increased the price of the raw material about 50 per cent.

"Anybody who knows anything about the cotton manufacturing situation knows that cotton goods are not higher now than at the passage of the present tariff bill. In nearly every case they are materially lower, and so low that a very large proportion of the cotton spindles of America are idle and the industry is in a state of unprecedented prostration.

"It is evident, therefore, that the present tariff cannot have caused higher prices, as they do not exist. Moreover, the reasons given for the tariff producing a situation which does not exist are full of misstatements, as these illustrations clearly show."

HERE'S THE LATEST SUMMER MUSIC

The August list of new Victor records went on sale to-day at the Oliver Ditson Company store. The list comprises records of band and orchestra music, instrumental solos, grand opera arias, popular songs and sacred music. A review of the selections offered shows a new march by Pryor. It is played by Pryor's Band and the composer has given it the unique name of "Ann March." There are two splendid records from Victor Herbert's popular "Mlle. Modiste" and from the famous Gilbert-Sullivan operetta, "The Mikado." All of these are sung by the Victor Light Opera Company. In the list of popular songs are two new selections by Harry Lauder, "Jean MacNeill" and "The Blarney Stone;" "Rosa Rosetta" as sung by Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth in the Jolly Bachelors; a new musical production called "Madame Sherry," sung by Lucy Marsh and Harry Macdonough and a series of duets by Elida Morris and Billy Murray.

MAYOR GETS AFTER PARENTAL SCHOOL

Mayor Fitzgerald says he is determined to sift the charges brought against a master of the Parental School at West Roxbury by Mrs. Edith E. Dalforth, an assistant matron and wife of L. L. Dalforth, another master, though the board of trustees of the children's institutions have stopped action in the matter.

The trustees suspended the master pending a hearing. Mrs. Dalforth did not appear.

Master Dalforth, the trustees say, declined to affirm or deny the truth of the charges and declined to give any information. Thereupon the board of trustees suspended Master Dalforth, saying that neither he nor his wife had appeared to make good upon the charges.

Master Dalforth went to the Mayor's office and entered protest against his removal. The master, against whom charges were made by Mrs. Dalforth, was reinstated, after suspension.

ENORMOUS JUMP IN NEW YORK PAYROLL

NEW YORK, July 28.—The salary lists of city employes in all the municipal departments made public to-day by Comptroller Prendergast show that in the first six months of the Gaynor administration the net payroll expenses increased by the enormous amount of $1,307,041.92. This is the largest net increase in salaries in the history of New York city.

FRENCH AVIATOR SAILS FOR HOME

NEW YORK, July 28.—Count Jaques de Jesseps, the French aviator who recently made daring flights in his monoplane in Canada, sailed for home to-day on the French liner La Savoie, after announcing that he would return in October to take part in the international aviation meet on Long Island.

RAILROADS END STOP-OVER TICKETS

CHICAGO, July 28.—Railroads covering nearly every section of the country have decided to discontinue after October 1 the practice of granting stop-over privileges on limited tickets, wherever such stop-over operates to extend the original limits of the tickets. The roads have been endeavoring for more than a year to reach an agreement on this point, for the reason, they say, that the practice has increased until the prescribed limits of the tickets have been exceeded for all sorts of trivial causes.

Fill this out and mail it to George H. Gordon, Secretary, The American Boy Scout, New England Headquarters, No. 5 Bromfield Street, Boston, Mass.

While the thousands of boys who have filed their applications for membership in the American Boy Scout movement at the New England Headquarters of the American Boy Scout, No. 5 Bromfield street, are waiting for their assignments to drillmasters and patrols, there is much that they may do now by themselves in preparation for the work that is to come.

In a statement issued from the New England Headquarters yesterday the boys are requested during the next week to post themselves in a great many ways. First, they are cautioned to let nothing escape their attention. A good practice for boys who are trying to develop this trait is for somebody in the game to take a number of small articles, say six or eight, like a hat, a pocket knife, a thimble, a table fork, etc.

Let the other boys in the game get a glance at the number of articles and then the leader must quickly cover them over. The boy who can most accurately describe the number and kind of articles is the winner. It is an excellent practice.

Every American Boy Scout applicant should immediately post himself as to the nearest drug store in case of accident, the nearest police station, the nearest hospital, the nearest fire alarm, where the pay station telephones are, so that in case of an accident or a fire he may at once make himself useful.

It is not necessary for these applicants to have had any drilling or to have uniforms to send in an alarm for fire or to run and get a policeman if one is wanted.

Remember What You See.

An excellent practice for the boys is to listen to the sounds of night. No matter where a boy lives the night sounds differ altogether from those of daylight. Much of the drilling and scouting when the boys go into camp will be done after dark and they can begin to train their ears for that work now. For example: If a boy puts his ear to the ground or places it against a stick, or especially against a drum which is touching the ground, he will hear the sound of a horse's hoofs or the tramp of a man a long way off. Another way is to open a pocket knife which has a blade at each end, stick one blade in the ground and hold the other between the teeth and he will hear all the better. The human voice, even though sounding low, carries to a great distance and is not likely to be mistaken for any other sound.

Here is another game which the boys may practice:

Walk down a street. Notice the different kinds of stores you pass and the order in which you pass them. Notice the names. Notice the contents of each window, after looking at it steadily for two minutes. Then gather with your companions at the end of the block and see who can recall the largest number of objects accurately.

Boys can learn to track very largely by themselves or one boy may practice in companionship with another. A bright boy can very readily learn to track a horse and also tell how fast the animal is traveling. When a horse walks it makes two pairs of hoof tracks. The near hind foot is always close in front of the near fore foot mark and the off foot is always just behind the front of the off hind foot. When the horse trots he makes a similar track, but he takes longer strides.

Here is another good way to practice tracking: Let several scouts prepare a well-flattened piece of ground about fifty feet each way. Have one boy walk across it, then run, then ride his wheel across it. It is best to have part of the ground wet as if by rain, the other part dry.

Reading Signs.

Let the scouts then examine the track. On the following day make fresh tracks alongside of the old ones and notice the difference in appearance so that scouts can learn to judge how old a track is. A good plan is to make tracks of various kinds overrunning each other's tracks and let the scouts read the meaning.

The trained scout sees little signs of tracks and he puts them together in his mind and quickly reads the meaning from them in a way that an untrained boy would never dream of. General Baden-Powell gives this illustration of the importance of tracking during the Boer War:

"I was one day, during the Matabele war, with a native out scouting near to the Matopo Hills over a wide grassy plain. Suddenly we crossed a track freshly made in grass, where the blades of grass were still green and damp, though pressed down; all were bending one way, which showed the direction in which the people had been traveling. Following up the track for a bit, it got onto a patch of sand, and we then saw that it was the track of several women (small feet with straight edge, and short steps) and boys (small feet, curved edge, and longer strides) walking, not running, toward the hills, about five miles away, where we believed the enemy to be hiding.

"Then we saw a leaf lying about ten yards off the track. There were no trees for miles, but we knew that trees having this kind of leaf grew at a village fifteen miles away, in the direction from which the footmarks were coming. It seemed likely, therefore, that the women had come from that village, bringing the leaf with them, and had gone to the hills.

"On picking up the leaf we found it was damp and smelled of native beer. The short steps showed that the women were carrying loads. So we guessed that according to the custom they had been carrying pots of native beer on their heads, the mouths of the pots being stopped up with bunches of leaves. One of these leaves had fallen out, but we found it ten yards off the track, which showed that at the time it fell a wind was blowing. There was no wind now, that is, 7 o'clock, but there had been one about 5 o'clock.

"So we guessed from all these little signs that a party of women and boys had brought beer during the night from the village fifteen miles away, and had taken it to the enemy on the hills, arriving there soon after 6 o'clock the next morning.

"The men would probably start to drink the beer at once (as it goes sour in a few hours), and would, by the time we could get there, be getting sleepy and keeping a bad lookout, so we should have a favorable chance of looking at their position.

"We accordingly followed the women's tracks, found the enemy, made our observations, and got away with our information without any difficulty.

"And it was chiefly done on the evidence of that one leaf. So, boys, you see the importance of noticing even a little thing like that."

All the boy scouts are urged to immediately begin these studies in observation and in tracking. They can begin it at once without any further instructions from headquarters. It is not only good sport, but it is a necessary part of a scout's education, whether he be a scout of war or a scout of peace.

Secretary George H. Gordon, of the New England Headquarters, gave these hints only as an outline of the work boys will do when they are finally organized in their patrols and assigned to their drill masters. He did this to give some of the boys something to think over and a chance to do something now which will be of practical use later in scout life.

Yesterday was another busy day at the New England Headquarters. A large number of applications were received and several new patrols were registered.

The following applicants for membership in the American Boy Scout movement have sent incorrect addresses. If a boy's name appears here he should send his correct address at once to the New England Headquarters at No. 5 Bromfield st., Boston, Mass.:

Leonard Dunn, 3 Light st., Boston; Edmund H. Luce, North Castle, Me.; Herbert N. Fallon, 95 Transit st., Boston; Percy Utton, 95 Hope st., Boston; William Noonan, 169 Westminster st., Worcester; Mearty Langler, Marlboro, Mass.; William Cahart, 203 Portland st., Boston; John Harris, Haverhill, Mass.; Mr. Herman Gunn, 2,082 Washington st., Roxbury; Joseph Carey, Norton av., Boston; Charles L. Tribou, 84 Oak st., Boston; Frederick Hyatt, 280 Main st., Boston; Morris B. Langley, Ferry Road, Mass., Box 23.

Applications for the Scout Manual, which is the book of instruction of the American Boy Scout movement, may now be filed. Every patrol leader and every Scout ought to have this book. Send in your subscription at once. The price of the book is twenty-five cents and the cost of mailing seven cents. Send thirty-two cents in stamps to Mr. George H. Gordon, secretary of the New England Headquarters of the American Boy Scout, No. 5 Bromfield street, Boston.

LOSS OF HAIR

Dandruff and Itching Scalp—Simple Way To Cure Them

The most common cause of loss of hair, dandruff and itching scalp is neglect. People don't wash the scalp and hair often enough. Leading authorities like Dr. J. C. Bayles and Dr. Woods Hutchinson, of New York, and Prof. Lassar, of Germany, recommend frequent washing with mild, neutral soaps. The best thing of all for this purpose is Birt's Head Wash, because it is made of a particularly fine soap, medicated with glycerin, white of eggs, cocoanut oil, salicylic acid. Birt's Head Wash makes a profuse lather, and not only cleans the hair and the outside of the scalp, but opens up and cleanses the pores as well. This opening of the pores is most beneficial and invigorating to the hair roots, and does more to prevent the loss of hair than all so-called "tonics" put together. A single shampoo with Birt's Head Wash will prove all these claims to your satisfaction. Tubes 25c, jars 50c.

DUCHESS OF ROXBURGHE TO VISIT NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I., July 28.—The Duchess of Roxburghe, formerly Miss May Goelet, "Newport society is stirred by the duchess," is coming to Newport early next month, with the Duke, to visit Mrs. Ogden Goelet. Newport society is stirred by the announcement. Little else is discussed today but the coming of the Duchess. Everywhere she furnishes a lively topic of conversation in the swell set.

The Duchess, with her husband, will be handsomely entertained while she is here. Already her mother has arranged two functions in her honor. Other social leaders will play the host, also.

The visit will carry the Duke and Duchess back to the old days, for it was at Ochre Court, Mrs. Goelet's home, that they spent their honeymoon. It is their first visit to Newport since that time.

Of all the American girls who have married titles, the Duchess of Roxburghe is probably the most talked of and best known. She has entertained royalty, loves the "weed," sets the fashion in tiaras and is a zealous angler, being expert with the rod. She also loves golf.

The Duchess entertained King George and his queen when they were Prince and Princess of Wales. She has also been "commanded" to visit the Queen Dowager Alexandra at Sandringham palace, when King Edward was living. Once, the invitation to visit the palace came so suddenly that the Duchess was all of a flutter because she had no new dress to wear. She wore what she called "old" clothes. The Duchess was liked by Alexandra because she was exclusive and maintained her ducal dignity, and by Edward because she was a good player of bridge.

The gems worn by the Duchess are estimated as worth nearly a million, and are among the finest to be found in the collection of any woman, ducal or otherwise. She caused a few ripples in society when her diamonds outshone those of the Maharajah of Nepal.

The Duchess loves her cigarette, and has a dainty gold case for the smokes.

BIG THRONG VIEWS PAIN'S FIREWORKS

A large crowd saw the pyrotechnical exhibition given by the Pain Fireworks Company at the American League ball grounds. The presentation was on an elaborate scale, and everything from roman candles to handsome set pieces, some of the latter fifty feet long, were shown. A band concert added to the entertainment. One of the pieces depicted Tris Speaker in flame. Tris was shown in his characteristic batting crouch. Another fine set piece was of the siege of a city by two airships, their collision and the bursting of one of them. One of the best of the humorous pieces was "Teddy and the Lion," fire pictures of great size. All the set pieces were applauded.

MANY GOOD SALES IN REAL ESTATE MART

A fairly large number of important sales were reported in the real estate market to-day, most of them being properties located in various suburbs.

In the Back Bay the three-story, swell front, brick house and 1,110 square feet of land at No. 23 Dundee street, near Massachusetts avenue, have been purchased by Margaret M. Connolly from William J. Maguire. This property is taxed for a total of $5,200, of which $2,200 is on the land.

In the South End the frame dwelling and 866 square feet of land at No. 38 Albion street, near Lucas street, all taxed for $2,200, have been sold by Everett C. Bumpus et al., trustees, to Blanche M. McKeagney. The land is rated for $1,800.

Another large sale in Allston is reportde through the office of W. J. McDonald, No. 95 Milk street, of a tract of land containing about 50,000 square feet, situated on Commonwealth avenue and running through to Holmes avenue. Plans and specifications have been made through the office of Hurd & Gore which call for three buildings containing three houses each, the whole containing about sixty suites of three, four and five rooms each, and all the modern improvements. The purchaser is Herman Weisberg, who intends to commence operations at once. The property is assessed for $41,200. The asking price was $1.30 per square foot. Mr. Weisberg was represented by Samuel Epstein, and the grantor was W. Stanley Tripp.

In Roxbury the brownstone house and 75,640 square feet of land at the corner of Station, Gurney and Parker streets, all taxed for $58,700, have been purchased by Myer Queen from W. Cleveland Cogswell. The land is assessed for $52,000.

Charles H. Eastman, formerly of Meyer & Eastman, reports the sale of the new cottage dwelling house at No. 5 Vista street, Roslindale. Christopher Rau was the grantor to George T. Barrett, who buys for a home.

The new frame house and 3,345 square feet of land at Nos. 1,047-1,051 Dorchester avenue, corner of Pearl street, Dorchester, all taxed for $9,000, have been purchased by John F. Eager from Joseph Lewenberg. The land is rated for $2,000.

Mrs. Susan T. Maguire has sold to Marguerite G. Henry the frame house and 7,961 square feet of land at No. 1,059 Dorchester avenue, corner of Pearl street, Dorchester. This estate is assessed for a total of $6,700, of which $3,000 is on the land.

Morris Mordell et ux have sold to Bella Seigel a brick house and about 3,000 square feet of land, all taxed for $6,400, on Stanwood street, near Normandy street, Dorchester. The land is taxed for thirty cents a foot.

Poole & Bigelow of No. 70 Kilby street report the sale for Lester E. Libby of South Hamilton to Herbert W. Mason of this city of the large estate known as the Wallace farm, in Ipswich, consisting of about ninety-three acres of land, with farmhouse, barns and other buildings. It is the intention of Mr. Mason to make extensive improvements, probably including the erection of a modern dwelling, and to occupy during the Summer and Fall seasons and to operate the farm.

The Chapin Farm Agency report the sale of the Magnolia estate, situated on King street, opposite Sansara Hall, in New Augustine, St. John's County, Florida, comprising a modern two-story house, stable and a large lot of land, filled with semi-tropical trees, plants and shrubs. The estate was sold to B. J. Bowers. The price paid is not made public.

SUMMER RESIDENT BREAKS THREE RIBS

PORTLAND, July 28.—Mrs. Irving Small of Winchester, Mass., a Summer resident at the east end of Long Island, started to go aboard a steamer at Doughty's landing. The gangplank slipped and she fell between the steamer and the side of the pier. Three ribs were broken and she received other injuries. She is at the Eye and Ear Infirmary, and reported to be resting comfortably.

CRAWFISH SWARM OVER CORN FIELDS

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Farmers of Mississippi are having so much trouble band lyng crawfish from the Mississippi office. r out of their cornfielders they have part, andled to Washington for aid. A special This mat has been sent to stamp out the pest if possible. The crawfish eat the roots of cornstalks and even climb up and devour leaves and ears of corn. One farmer gathered more than 100 barrels of crawfish from his fields.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STOCK MARKET TAKES BRACE

NEW YORK, July 28.—A tone better than any shown in several weeks formed the underlying basis of trading in the stock market when business began to-day. There was great activity in the chief railroad and industrial shares and all the leaders displayed great strength. Advances of one and one-half to two points were recorded.

United States Steel was the strongest feature of the market, as was natural, since it was the recent report of earnings by the steel corporation that set the check to the downward movement. There was a persistent demand for the stock and the first records showed sales of 30,000 shares. The prices ran from 66⅝ to 67, as against 65½ for last night's close. There has been a large short interest in Steel stock, and it was practically overwhelmed to-day by the great strength of the security. It is expected that a good many of the bears have begun to seek cover on the upturn in the market, pocketing their losses.

Wabash preferred joined the active list, and it was said that interests identified with the Harriman stocks were the buyers. The stock showed good strength, advancing more than a point. Amalgamated Copper was in good demand and opened up a full point. Rock Island advanced 2⅛ points and the preferred 3½ points, while Canadian Pacific moved up 2¾ points.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Some very important investment orders were executed for cash, but the aggregate of these was not large.

$ $ $

Since the first of the year those opposed to the constructive side of the market have maintained that nothing in the way of permanent improvement in prices could result until the copper metal showed signs of doing better. Leading buyers of copper have come to the conclusion that bottom prices have been seen.

$ $ $

A very great number of purchases were made in lots of fifty shares and less. The most important of the odd-lot houses that specialize in this business found that the buyers were nearly all persons who had not been in the market for many months. An unusual number of new names appeared on the books. The investors who have been holding stocks recently are more inclined to sell.

$ $ $

There are many persons in State Street who believe it is wrong to tell the truth about business at a critical time like this. The truth is that the Western banks have got themselves into such an awkward predicament by making indiscriminate loans based on inflated land values that they find it inconvenient to raise the money for moving crops, which their clients have a right to demand of them. Their rediscounts in New York are maturing and cannot be renewed.

$ $ $

The strength of the market has been too rigid and too clearly artificial to last. The Rock Island and Lehigh stocks taken by the syndicate will be peddled out as rapidly as possible. The quick advance has also inspired selling by those who bought in the crash. A few days of strength may be expected and conservative bankers are looking for a good trading market for a little while.

$ $ $

The railway rate question will of course be a deterring factor until it is settled, but for the moment, the course of prices will be affected to a greater extent by the news from the corn and cotton belts.

$ $ $

The best market letter published at present is that issued by the United States Government in the shape of a weather map. The weather map gave advance information of the sensational rise in cotton. It told of the rise in corn. One good rain in the corn belt would be worth a thousand interviews based on nothing but good wishes. The crops at the moment are so much more important than anything else that for the next two or three weeks every other consideration can be safely dismissed as a stock market influence.

James J. Hill says: "The most reliable estimates I have seen range from 65,000,000 to 90,000,000 bushels less wheat for Minnesota and the Dakotas than last year. Rains have done good this month. Crops in general will probably turn out better than has been generally expected. It is a question what the State Legislatures may try to do next Winter. Reasonable regulation is all right if we can get it, but 80 per cent. of the railroad traffic is interstate and forty-six States can not be regulating at cross purposes simultaneously without doing a lot of harm."

N. L. Amster says: "The restriction of copper output which has been tacitly agreed to by some of the large producers will tend to put the industry on a stable basis and should stimulate copper shares. The copper share market has been sold out for weeks. I do not believe that a man makes a mistake to-day in buying 'coppers' for keeps."

$ $ $

Whether the general feeling is any better or not it would be hard to say, but there is no doubt that hope runs higher. It is felt that the bank statement to be issued on Saturday will show a big decrease in loans in consequence of the liquidation that has taken place, together with a large gain in cash. It is believed the surplus will stand at record figures at the end of the week.

$ $ $

The improvement in Atchison shows that the stock is in a position to go up whenever it receives any encouragement. It is expected that the showing of the company in way of earnings will grow better as the time goes on and this will lead to further investment. The shorts in the issue did a lot of covering yesterday after the discovery that the stock was being supported.

$ $ $

If the old Harriman crowd succeeds in getting hold of Union Pacific there may be something doing in the way of an uplift. These people are very bullish on the security and say it ought to go to 250, as its merits entitle it to that figure. The most positive assurances are given that the dividend will not be reduced. If the old Harriman crowd gets control the dividend is safe beyond doubt.

$ $ $

It is said that one reason for the decline in Southern Pacific was that the Union Pacific has been selling its Southern Pacific holdings. There is no short interest in the latter at all and consequently one of the reasons for the recession was that long stock has been coming out. Why these holders should want to sell the Street does not know as the property is in the best of condition.

PARK BAN ON MOTORS FINDS FEW FRIENDS

By J. C. KERRISON.

From the evidence illuminating the hearing before the Massachusetts Highway Commission on the proposed ordinances of the Boston Park Commissioners, excluding motor vehicles from the park system, it would indeed be difficult to see how the commission can very well endorse the rules. The belief of the writer is that the Park Commissioners will be given leave to withdraw.

Mayor Fitzgerald was there and spoke at considerable length upon the cost of maintenance of these park roads, and incidentally paid his respects to some of the newspapers in Boston—mentioning one by name—which he said had not told the whole truth of the matter. The cost of park maintenance, he contended, had increased one hundredfold since Mayor Collins's administration, and he felt that the city of Boston should receive some assistance from the automobile fees received annually by the State.

He again brought out the fact that the city of Boston is paying 36 per cent. of the cost of State highway upkeep and has not over one mile of State highway within ten miles of Boston. He said it cost the city $37,000 a year to maintain the park roadways alone and that some relief should be given the city. He emphatically stated that the passage of these ordinances by the Park Commission was entirely by its own action and initiative and that he had nothing whatever to do with it. At this time he distinctly stated that he was simply giving the views of his office on the matter, and made no statement as to whether or not he was in favor of the measure. And that was the attitude taken by him during the entire session.

Will Meet Park Board.

General Francis Peabody, Jr., asked the Mayor several pointed questions, getting the Mayor to say if representatives of the motorists present would meet him at his office in City Hall he would have the Park Commissioners there, and he had no doubt but what satisfactory adjustment could be made, or, in other words, if the motorists would agree to go before the Legislature next year and argue in favor of the city receiving a just portion of the motor registration fees for the care and upkeep of the Boston parkways he felt that the commission would be willing to hold the matter in abeyance. He, however, made no distinct promise, as the matter is entirely in the hands of the Park Commission.

General Peabody seemed willing to meet this condition of affairs, and Arthur P. Teele, representing three automobile dealers of Boston, said he felt that such would be a satisfactory adjustment. However, there were several others who felt that the matter was now in the hands of the Highway Commission and should be decided by that body.

Chairman Parker felt that the commission had no option, and it must proceed with the hearing, settling the question entirely on its merits.

General Peabody sought some information relative to the parkways from Mayor Fitzgerald, and he passed it over to Secretary Pettigrew of the Park Commission who was present. Mr. Pettigrew, however, said he was not there to represent the Park Commission, but to give any information desired, and later he said that while he was of the opinion that the Park Commission was unanimous on the proposition of closing the roads to motorists, he had not been instructed to appear before the Highway Commission as either in favor or against the measure.

None Squarely in Favor.

And thus it came about that not a single person came out flat-footedly in favor of the proposition.

Mayor Fitzgerald and Chairman Parker had several little interesting tilts during the hearing. Once the Mayor objected to what he considered a harsh and unjust criticism by the chairman, who said he meant it not as a criticism, but rather as a statement of facts as presented.

URGES STATE TEST FOR PHYSICIANS

There should be more demonstration and less talk in medical schools. I wish to call your attention to an important matter that I hope to have made a law; one that I shall earnestly work for.

What I refer to is the great need of practical examination by the tSate Board of Medical Examiners of men who are to become physicians. If we have a practical examination of those who plan to enter our profession with the use of anatomical models, specimens of blood, etc., it will prevent men who know practically nothing of medical science from playing with human lives.—Dr. Richard C. Cabot to physicians at his home in Cohasset.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

PROBE DEATH OF M'KEAGUE

LYNN, July 28.—Investigation is being made by the police of a report that the death of George H. McKeague, Jr., a prominent sporting man of Marblehead, who died at the Salem Hospital, was due to an assault made upon him in a Marblehead resort two weeks ago. It is said that the names of the men who attacked him at that time are known to the police.

For several days after he was taken to the hospital, McKeague told his friends that he had been assaulted by several men, and said that he expected to die from his wounds.

McKeague was fifty-one years old, and was well known, through his connection with many local baseball teams and the Marblehead Boat Club. He was prominent as an athlete, and took part in sports all over the State. It is thought that his friends may ask the police to investigate and to make several arrests.

AMERICAN WANT "ADS" BRING RESULTS

NEWPORTERS TAKE SWIM AFTER DANCE

NEWPORT, R. I., July 28.—Newport's newest diversion for the society folk is a dip in the ocean after dancing until 2 or 3 a. m. The women haven't taken up the fad as yet.

The originators of the idea were the young men who attended Mrs. Edward J. Berwind's dance. Beginning at 3 a. m. they spent an hour in the ocean.

Listen to the Smallest Chimpanzee

If You Think That Fighting Is So Very Important, or That It Means in Our Day ANYTHING

Copyright, 1910, by the American-Journal-Examiner.

In the Bronx Zoo in New York City they are raising, on the bottle, the smallest chimpanzee that has ever been seen in this country.

The chimpanzee, as you probably know, is the most highly developed of all the family of "primates," excepting man himself, who stands at the head of that family.

This little chimpanzee is a wonder, physically and mentally. He belongs to a race of monkeys less powerful but infinitely more intelligent than the huge gorillas—some of whom, recently discovered, are eight feet high.

This particular little chimpanzee is about a foot high. He weighs now—when his stomach is full of milk—about sixteen pounds. And he has a very earnest, kind, gentle, almost human face.

Chimpanzees and other monkeys are very much like human beings in this. They all look like geniuses when they are babies—in order that their mothers may be charmed into taking good care of them.

The small chimpanzee in the Bronx Zoo—you can see him in the picture on the right—is talking to two of the great human monkeys now attracting attention in our country—Johnson and Jeffries. And this is what the little chimpanzee says to the big fighting man monkeys:

"I recently came all the way from Africa. I am only a baby chimpanzee—and a pretty small chimpanzee at that.

"But I can tell you that even in Africa we would consider you two big monkey men a disgrace to the monkey race.

"How is it possible that you can waste your time fighting with your fists when you live in a country like this—where you can get nice fresh water by turning a piece of brass, where the milk comes in wonderful glass bottles, where, instead of being covered with hair, you have fancy clothes that you can take off and put on?

"How is it possible that you big men, and the millions that look at you, and the tens of millions growing up, can be interested in the foolish things that you do with your fists?

"Why, I have out in Africa a brother about half as big as one of you, and he could take the two of you and knock your heads together and beat your brains out in five minutes. Yet he wouldn't be very important here in America.

"Out in Africa we HAVE to fight. For there are no police there, no iron bars to keep out the wicked animals such as you have here in the Zoological Gardens. My father and mother and my big brothers were taught to fight from the minute they were born, and if I were out there I would have to fight, too.

"But even if I AM a chimpanzee, I would be ashamed to waste my time fighting in a country like THIS. This country is way beyond fighting.

"What IS fighting, anyhow? You two fight each other, and my brother could beat you both, for he could deal a blow that would knock you both senseless. But a zebra could KICK my brother senseless, and the lion could kill the zebra, and a falling tree trunk could kill the lion.

"I should think you man monkeys, that walk so straight on your hind legs, and get milk and peanuts and sugar so easily, would be ashamed to use your fists."

That is about the way the baby chimpanzee would talk—if he could understand conditions and talk at all.

And any boy who wastes his time in thinking about fighting, any man who believes that fighting is a great thing, or that the negro race is better off because it has a good fighter, or that the white race would have been any better if the white man had beaten the negro, IS ON A PAR WITH AN ORDINARY AFRICAN CHIMPANZEE, and below an educated chimpanzee in the Zoo.

American Readers' Ideas on the Height of Affluence

In an editorial in the American of July 15 readers were asked to give their ideas of "The Height of Affluence." Several hundred replies have been received, some of the most interesting of which are herewith given:

WOULD DEMOLISH TENEMENTS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The Height of Affluence, as I view it, is to have power sufficient to demolish all tenement houses in New York city inhabited by poor people, whether they be in an overcrowded condition or the reverse, and build on the same ground, and on other grounds near the city limits, houses having improvements such as those the well-to-do are enjoying in the better part of the city at the present time.

I would have the Legislature enact a forty-three-hour per week working law, thereby enabling the working man and woman an opportunity of a day and a half of rest, beginning at 12 noon on Saturday.

I would also have them enact a law which would make it a crime to pay employes starvation wages. As it is at the present time, the working class is only existing, and not living in the true sense of the word.

I would build enormous working establishments suitable to produce goods necessary for the human needs of mankind, and no employe could work before 9 in the morning or later than 5 at night—closing at 12 noon on Saturday, and receiving wages worthy of his hire.

HAROLD D. SPEER.

BETTER THAN VANDERBILT

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I am a constant reader of the BOSTON AMERICAN, and, being interested in an article on "The Height of Affluence," I would like to give you my idea.

I consider an honest and contented workingman, who thinks of the poor and helps them, more wealthy than Vanderbilt with his wasted money and his horse races.

Brookline. RAY PERE.

WOULD ABOLISH POVERTY

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Your editorial on "The Height of Affluence" is indeed very interesting. To me it seems that each one, no matter in what class or mass he forms part, can easily exercise that power.

Though it in a sense means wealth or riches, the expression of affluence, however, lies in neither. On the contrary, one desiring to exercise in the height of real affluence would find it inevitably necessary to combat with both wealth and riches. In that sphere one's work can but formulate itself in an attempt to equalize opportunities to all and minimize the struggle and strife for existence.

What greater height of affluence can one desire to attain? To triumph means to see the abolition of poverty with its devilish eyes of crime and shame.

What a splendid work! Who would leave his share undone?

Join the ranks of the universal movement to exercise in the height of affluence for the abolition of evil and its evil root—poverty.

BERNARD S. FINEMAN.

EARTH AT MAN'S DISPOSAL

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Here is my idea of the "Height of Affluence," in short: Man, refined, should have the earth at his disposal, not necessarily in his pocket. LUCIEN A. WEISER.

REAL SOURCE OF HAPPINESS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The Standard Dictionary defines "affluence" as riches. Now, I submit that there is no inherent power in money to produce happiness, the chief aim of mortal existence. I recognize a vast difference between evanescent pleasure and happiness. The proper conception of life is service. The altruistic spirit enables human nature to produce greater satisfaction and contentment than could ever be derived from the possession of abundant riches.

AN AMERICAN READER.

A COMFORTABLE INCOME

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

My idea of the "Height of Affluence" would be to have sufficient income to live comfortably for life, which I have honestly earned, to have good health and a successful marriage, which I consider more important than the accumulation of wealth. Even the Bible tells us that a virtuous woman is more precious than pearls. A. L. LUCA

World's Greatest Industry

By MILO HASTINGS

IN the United States the value of the poultry crop excels that of pork, coal, iron or lumber. The product of the hen ranks in the same class with wheat and cotton, and is excelled only by corn, beef and dairy produce.

Corn, the Colossus of Uncle Sam's industrial offspring, is a plant native to the Western World, but it is almost unknown in the old and crowded countries, while in southeastern Asia, where one-half of the world's people live, beef and milk are as unusual articles of food as goat's meat or horse flesh.

Pork is an important American food; it is also a Chinese food, but it is little eaten in Japan or India. The cotton production of the world is almost monopolized by Uncle Sam. Our excessive consumption of lumber is notorious, while the United States, with one-seventeenth of the world's population, produced two-fifths of its iron and nearly as large a proportion of its coal.

Of the great industries of earth we have left in the race for first honors only wheat and poultry—one the acknowledged staff of life, the other known to the world chiefly as the rude awakener of the suburbanites dream of an easy road to fortune.

Wheat is the breadmaking material of the inhabitants of Southwestern Asia, Northern Africa, Southern and Western Europe, and the descendants of these people in other lands. But in the populous districts of Northern and Eastern Europe, rye is the staple food; in Mexico and South America corn is the human breadstuff, while for nearly one-half the world's population in Asia wheaten bread is replaced by rice, or to a less extent by millet.

The United States produced $700,000,000 worth of wheat, while the value of the world's wheat crop is estimated at $3,000,000,000. This gives a per capita consumption of wheat of about eight dollars for the American and two dollars for the world-man. In other lands wheat is replaced by other grains, while in the densely populated regions of Asia and Africa poultry serves to replace much of the beef and milk in the diet of the Anglo-Saxon.

If we assume the poultry consumption of the world to be only one-half the American figure, or $4 per capita, the grand total of the earth's poultry crop would be $6,000,000,000—twice as much as the world's wheat crop, five times as much as the earth's annual output of iron and equal to the product of the world's gold mines from the discovery of America until the demonetization of silver in 1873.

We are awed and impressed by the large industries that are concentrated in few hands, but the great totals of small items repeatedly escape attention. The wealth represented by the poultry on hand at any one time is comparatively small compared with the output. A hen lays from three to five times her worth of eggs in a year and rears each season about twice her value of young poultry.

Such commodities as diamonds, oranges or mutton get into commerce because the region of their production is limited, but the hen is grown everywhere, and is eaten everywhere, and it is only in the later stages of civilization, when half of humanity is separated from contact with the soil and dwells in sterile structures of steel and stone, that poultry products enter into commerce and thus make known their wealth to us through the power of exchange.

Of all animal industries poultry production is the best adapted to intensive agriculture. Cattle growing is but one step above the chase, and is developed in new and sparsely settled countries. Australia has 2.78 cow brutes per capita, the United States 1.22, England .28, Japan practically none.

Into the wilderness with his flocks and his herbs the captain of the prairie schooner takes the hen; the range is fenced—the sod is turned—farms grow smaller, and the flocks and herbs give way before the ever increasing human swarm—but the hen remains, and comes nearer following the man to a city home than any other food producing animal.

Some day we will forget the taste of pork as we have forgotten the taste of venison, and beef will become a by-product of the dairy business, but the hen will stay with us until she is relieved by the analytical chemist and eggs are made at Niagara Falls.
